LITTLE GIRL A FIGURE IN HAYWOOD TRIAL

William D. Haywood's youngest daughter has been his constant companion in the courtroom at Boise, Idaho. The photograph shows her surrounded by men prominent in the trial, including Haywood himself and two of his counsel, Richardson and Darrow.

Big Crowd at Trial of Haywood on Assassination Charge.

ORCHARD GOES ON STAND

BOISE, Idaho, June 5.—All eyes at the Haywood trial are to-day centered upon Harry Orhcard, who takes the witness stand to confess the alleged "great conspiracy" that is charged with bringing about the assassination of ofrmer Governor Steunenberg and fifteen others.

A crowded courtroom waits for the sensation this man—the chief accuser of the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners—is expected to furnish. Orchard's "confession" will, according to the prosecution, lay bare not only the alleged plot to kill Steunenberg, but a conspiracy plot that extended back a number of years.

It is indicated that the principal testimony with which it is intended to connect Haywood with the witness, his accuser, is the transmission of money to the murderer at various times. To establish this, Pearl Moore, the money-order clerk at the Denver Postoffice, is here to-day ready to take the witness stand. She has brought memoranda of records bearing on this phase of the case, it is said.

To Show Infernal Machine.

Bombs that were and bombs that were not exploded in different places are ready to be produced by the State. Prosecutor James H. Hawley has declared that an infernal machine originally intended for the killing of Steunenberg has been found, and is here as a mute witness for the prosecution.

That Haywood's counsel is on the alert every moment was shown by the way Clarence Darrow tangled up Prosecutor Hawley during the latter's opening address to the jury. Protesting again and again against epithets applied by the prosecutor to Haywood and other officials of the Western Federation of Miners, Darrow succeeded in obtaining admissions from Hawley that he was not proceeding with his opening address along the regular lines. He apologized to the judge and jury for several extraordinary statements.

Darrow Tangles Up Hawley.

"The 'inner circle' of the Western Federation of Miners, composed of William D. Haywood and his co-defendants, gathered about them a few choice spirits whose trade was murder, and whose means of livelihood was assassination. They not only procured the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, but of fifteen others as well."

This startling accusation, made by Prosecutor Hawley, in his address, in a paragraph, laid bare the whole case of the State, but was so irrelevant in the belief of lawyers for the defence, that they not only angrily denied its truth, but appealed to Judge Fremont Wood to prohibit such a plain attempt to prejudice the jury.

"This is absurd, it is irrelevant, it is cruel injustice!" cried Darrow, interrupting Hawley's address.

"Even if it were true, Your Honor, it is arguing the case."

As Hawley continued, he so often reverted to general accusations against the Western Federation of Miners, that the objections came one after the other in

TWELVE YACHTS OFF IN LONG OCEAN RACE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The great ocean yacht race for gold cups offered by Rear Commodore Henry Maiers of the New Rochelle Yacht Club, and the Brooklyn, New Rochelle and Royal Bermuda Yacht Clubs is under way.

Twelve schooners, sloops and yawls started this morning from the Brooklyn Yacht Club's anchorage in Gravesenr Bay on their journey of 650 miles, against stiff winds and heavy seas, to St. David's Head, Bermuda.

Gravesend Bay, crowded with nattical enthusiasts, presented a scene of animation and bustle as the competing yachts, from the stately Priscilla which once had American cup ambitions, down to the saucy little Zena, were gotten ready for the get-away.

Twelve Entries.

There was at the outset a prospect that the race would attract the largest entry on record. But accidents inseparable from six months of preparation reduced the number of contestants by about one-half. Of three types of boats represented in the contest, Class A, for schooners of not less than fifty or more than ninety feet in length, headed by the Priscilla, had six entries. Class B for sloops of forty feet and under had three starters, and Class C for yawls also three.

That the competitors in the journey of five days or more that lies before them will be subjected to the hardest tests is certain. The course of the boats will take them through the gulf stream at its roughest place, and there is more than a possibility that as in the race last year, won by Commodore Maier's Tamerlane, some of the smaller boats will be compelled to retreat and put into Hampton Roads.

But if there is anything sure in yacht racing it is that the time record will be broken. Twelve months ago the Tamerlane established a new time for the distance by making the journey in 5 days 5 hours and 58 minutes. This year it is expected the trip will be made in less than five days.

Baby of the Fleet.

As always the smallest boat is the one best loved of the public, and this morning the Zena, baby of the fleet, carrying a mast of fifty-two feet, which makes her a conspicuous figure despite her scanty twenty-two feet of length, attracted the affectionate sympathy of the crowd. But many old sailors and yachtsmen shoot their heads at the sight of the big sail of the tiny boat and thought of heavy weather.

It was noticed this morning that Frederick Thompson, the owner of the schooner Shamrock, replaced her small boats with the dories carried by the Endymion on her race across the Atlantic from Sandy Hook to the Lizards Point for the Kaiser's cup.

Folowing is a list of the competing yachts:

Name.	Owner.	Club.
	SCHOONERS.
Priscilla	Philip Manson	Rochester Yacht Club.
Dervish	Henry A. Morse	C. Y. C., Marblehead.
Shamrock	Fred'k Thompson	Atlantic Yacht Club.

CAUGHT AFTER WEEK CHASE BY POLICE

After eluding the police of the Hanover street station for more than a week, Alfred O. Salvatore was arrested last evening by Patrolman Horton in connection with the murder of Costa Labori on Main street, Sunday, May 26. Salvatore was held on the charge of assault and battery with a loaded revolver.

NEW HAVEN'S GRIP ALREADY ON B. & M.

That 70,000 shares of Boston & Maine stock, necessary for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company to secure a working control of President Tuttle's railroad, have been secured by President Mellen during the past few days, is the statement give nout to-day by the Boston News Bureau. Officials of both roads still continue to deny all reports of mergers.

It is asserted that President Mellen has sent to Governor Guild a letter stating in full the objectes of the acquirement of the Boston & Maine. There are two resolutions now before the Massachusetts Legislature asking that the Legislature investigate the proposed merger to see whether or not it is against the best interests of the State or inviolation of any anti-merger laws now on the statue books.

The News Bureau's statement story is as follows:

Get Working Control.

"During the past few days banking interests acting for the New Haven people have received nearly 70,000 shares of Boston Maine stock and have given in exchange therefor an equal number of shares of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

"It is understood that during the next day or two sufficient Boston & Maine shares will have been received by the banking interests acting for the New Haven road to place the New Haven's Boston & Maine shares will have been received by the banking interests acting for the New Haven road to place the New Haven's Boston & Maine holdings in excess of 100,000 shares. For all of this an equal number of New Haven shares will be given in exchange.

"This gives the New Haven people a direct ownership of about thirty-four per cent. of the combined common and preferred shares of capital stock of the Boston & Maine, in cluding the new Boston & Maine stock recently issued, and is probably sufficient to make a working control.

"There is little doubt that stockholders of the Boston & Maine will be given an opportunity to exchange their stock for stock of the New Haven road pro rata and share for share.

Mellen's Letter to Guild.

"There has been much speculation as to what the position of the Massachusetts Legislature will be in connection with the passing of control of the Boston & Maine. It is stated in quarters close to the Massachusetts Executive that President Mellen of the New Haven road has sent a letter to Governor Guild of Massachusetts stating in full the present position of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven road towards the Boston & Maine.

"It is also stated in Boston circles that Massachusetts authorities have been advised of many prospective advantages which may follow change of control of the Boston & Maine, and that among these is the establishment of through train service up the Connecticut River valley, through Springfield to Vermont, through Worcester to Maine points; a subway under the city of Boston, and one large union station in Boston; and the establishing of lower rates and fares."

50 YEARS BUSINESS KILLED; ASK $50,000

TAUNTON, June 5.—J. H. Hargraves & Co., have brought suit against the city of Fall River in the Superior Court to recover $50,000 because the Board of Health of that city has commanded it to cease the manufacture of soap after a half century of business.

MRS. EDDY LOSES

Court Denies Petition of Trustees to Be Substituted as Plaintiffs in Suit Brought by Next Friends.

CONCORD, N. H., June 5.—Judge Chamberlin of the Merrimac County Superior Court to-day denied the motion of Mrs. Eddy's three trustees, Henry M. Baker, Archibald McClellan and Josiah Fernald, for leave to intervene and be substituted as plaintiffs in the suit in equity begun by some of the relatives of Mrs. Eddy. The decision is thus adverse to Mrs. Eddy.

This action is the most far reaching that has yet been made in the courts in connection with the famous Eddy suit.

Although in form it consists only of a few lines in the handwriting of Judge Chamberlin, filed in the office of Clerk of the Court Shurtleff to-day, it is of the highest importance in that it prevents the trustees appointed by Mrs. Eddy from taking charge of the suit in equity brought against Calvin A. Frye and her other business advisers.

IS LEADER'S FIRST DEFEAT.

It is the first defeat which Mrs. Eddy and her trustees have met in the action. It is a victory for George W. Glover, Mary Baker Glover, George W. Baker, Dr. E. J. Foster Eddy and Fred W. Baker, te relatives of Mrs. Eddy represented by former United States Senator W. E. Chandler. They appear in the original suit as "next friends."

Under the decision made to-day the suit in equity brought by these relatives will now be brought to trial.

The decision removes the possibility of persons friendly to the present administration at Pleasant View appearing in the case n any capacty except that of defendants.

The time at which the main action will be tried in the courts here has not yea been set.

General F. S. Streeter, Mrs. Eddy's personal counsel, refused to-day to discuss the decision of Judge Chamberlin.

From lawyers friendly with General Streeter and the other lawyers who represent Mrs. Eddy and those trustees she has appointed it was learned that an appeal by them to the Supreme Court of the State is now one of the probabilities.

Chandler Can Get Books.

In the arguments made by Mr. Chandler and the other lawyers for the relatives who began the suit against Mrs. Eddy's business advisers it was asserted that in seeking to be substituted as "next friends" those trustees, in reality, sought to get into their hands the conduct of the suit in equity that they might close that suit.

The defeat of their attempt now makes it possible for the forces led by Mr. Chandler to get at all the books and papers at Pleasant View and to demand an accounting if the money that has been received there by Mrs. Eddy's business advisers.

In urging their own substitution the trustees appointed by Mrs. Eddy attacked the original "next friends." They declared that Mr. Glover and the rest were enemies of the Christian Science Church, and that they brought the action in an attempt to disrupt the organization.

This is the last week that the Supreme Court sits here before the Summer vacation. It is expected that before aSturday night the trustees will take some action.

REPORT EARTHQUAKE FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The weather bureau gave out the following bulletin to-day:

"A distant earthquake of relatively small intensity was recorded last night by the seismographs at the weather bureau beginning at about 10:29 and lasting for nearly an hour.

While it is impracticable to determine the location of the origin of this earthquake, we are led to conclude that it was not more than two or three thousand miles distant, and probably to the south of Washington."

CROKER'S ORBY WINS BIG ENGLISH DERBY

KING EDWARD SEES AMERICAN HORSE CAPTURE BRITAIN'S COVETED PRIZE.

EPSOM, Eng., June 5.—Orby, Richard Croker's entry, with Johnny Reiff, the American jockey, up, won the Derby today. This is the third time in the history of the race that an American owner has captured the coveted prize of the turf.

Mr. Croker, just before starting for Epsom, said:

"I have not put Orby through any special trial for the Derby, but he has satisfied me in his public runnings and private trials, and I believe he has a fine chance of arriving home first.

"If he doesn't win, don't come near me." Mr. Croker added, indicating how anxious he was to win the race.

King Edward Present.

The race was run in the presence of a record-breaking crowd and King Edward was an interested spectator. Croker occupied a box with Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Mack of Buffalo and a few other friends who had accompanied him to the track by motor car.

Slieve Gallion, owned by Captain Greer, the heavily played odds-on favorite at 7 to 4 in the early betting, finished third. Woolwinder, who had figured at the start as a 10 to 1 choice, was second.

The closing odds showed little change in the betting. Slieve Gallion was forced down to 13 to 8, while the odds against Orby increased to 100 to 9. Hundreds of pounds were wagered on him at these figures. Woolwinder closed at the same price as Orby.

Croker himself is reported to have won $100,000 on the race in addition to the rich prize. It is said he wagered $10,000 at odds of 10 to 1.

Nine in the Race.

The race was one of the prettiest ever run at Epsom. The nine starters got away well together and set a terrible pace from the start. Slieve Gallion took up the running and forged to the front. The effort to set the pace proved too much for him, however. While still a long distance from the finish Reiff urged Orby to the front, and riding like a little fiend the jockey never relinquished the lead. Orby apparently had plenty of speed left when he dashed across the victor.

A heavy rain early this morning had soaked the track, making it slow and heavy.

In winning the Derby, Croker has gratified probably the final ambition of his closing life. All the previous turf winnings are as nothing compared with to-day's victory. Orby was bred by Croker, he being a son of Orme, out of the American mare Rhoda B., bought as a weanling in Kentucky by Croker for $1,000.

Just how anxious Croker was to win was shown when he said just before starting for the race track:

"Don't come near me if Orby doesn't win."

He based his confidence on Orby's performances in previous races and his private trials.

After the race Croker in person led Orby to his stable, followed by hundreds of shouting enthusiasts who rushed up to congratulate the American winner. Pandemonium reigned among the Americans who crowded into the paddock.

FACTORY AFIRE, WOMEN SCARED

A fire in the four-story brick building of the Robert Bishop Company, manufacturers of cotton waste, at No. 151 Sixth street, South Boston, to-day created great excitement among the 150 employes of the company, most of them women. The fire was due to spontaneous combustion. The damage was slight. All of the employes escaped from the building.

CLEARS THE COMPLEXION BY SIMPLE METHOD

The large crowds at the toilet goods department of Houghton & Dutton's store the past week were occasioned by the sale of the wonderful beautifier, Madame Ruppert's World-Renowned Face Bleach, at the greatly reduced price of nineteen cents per bottle. At this figure any one can afford to be beautiful.

The sale will be continued this week. Face Bleach is the marvellous remedy which removes effectually all freckles, pimples, blackheads, sallowness, moth patches, wrinkles not caused by facial expression, and brightens and beautifies any muddy, rough skin.—Adv.

DIVORCED MILLIONAIRE WEDS VIOLINIST IN HUB

To Evade New York Law Wealthy Real Estate Man Marries Beautiful Leonora Jackson Here.

The announcement to-day that beautiful and accomplished Leonora Jackson, one of the best known woman violinists in the world, had become the bride of Michael L. McLaughlin, the millionaire real estate man of Brooklyn, N. Y., was received by the Boston friends of the bride with considerable surprise.

The ceremony, which took place in the seclusion of a private apartment at Hotel Bellevue, was performed in this city because, according to the terms of the absolute divorce granted the former Mrs. McLaughlin in January, in New York City, her husband cannot take another wife in New York State. To evade this law, both bride and bridegroom hurried, secretly and apart, to Massachusetts, and not even their intimate friends were permitted to attend the marriage, which was performed by Rev. Arthur Little, pastor of the Second Congregational Church. Only Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jackson, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, were present as best man and maid of honor, respectively. The couple left for New York on the midnight train.

Bride Famed Musician.

In the Spring of 1906 Mrs. McLaughlin left her husband. In May of last year she started a suit for absolute divorce and the case was tried before Justice Jaycox in the Supreme Court at Patchogue, and the decree granted.

The fame of Leonora Jackson as a musician makes the wedding of international interest. At the express command of Queen Victoria, Miss Jackson played at Windsor Castle several years ago, and Her Majesty gave her a cross of diamonds.

During her career as a violinist she is said to have earned a musical reputation unequalled by any woman in this country.

For some time past Miss Jackson has lived in Brooklyn, at No. 2 Clat street.

People who heard her play in her youth became interested in her education and afforded her the substantial encouragement necessary for her finishing course abroad, among them Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ditson, of New York, Mrs. Sarah Whitman, of Boston, Mrs. General Logan, Mrs. Galvin Price, of Washington and Mrs. Grover Cleveland.

Won Honors Abroad.

In Berlin, her education was carried on under the great Joachim, whose esteem she won.

In 1897 she made her debut with the Philharmonic Orchestra in Berlin, and immediately afterward was invited to play before the German Empress, who bestowed upon her the highest praise.

Following this success came the award of the Mendelssohn prize by the Prussian government, and after a few concerts Miss Jackson went to England.

Just before she was received by Queen Victoria she executed with Nikisch's orchestra, the difficult Brahms concerto, and did it so well that German critics agreed that only Joachim himself could have played it better.

In 1899 she returned from her successes abroad, and after a remarkable reception at her appearance with the Philharmonic Society at Carnegie Hall, New York, made an extended concert tour of the country.

EX-GOV. BATES MAY BE NEXT HEAD OF TECH

Is Reported to Have Given an Affirmative Reply to an Unofficial Offer.

Ex-Governor John L. Bates may be the next president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He has been sounded, unofficially, as to his willingness to accept the honor and it is believed that he has given an affirmative reply.

There is a difference of opinion among Tech's faculty on the point of whether the new president should be an academic man or a man of local prominence who would be able to induce wealthy men and women to open their purses and give financial aid, now badly needed, to the progressive institution.

Governor Bates admits that he has been approached on the subject, but will not discuss it. He is believed to be just the man for the place, if a money-getter rather than an educator is wanted. His experience as president of the Board of Trustees of Boston University, however, places him also in the category of educators.

There was much discussion among the Tech faculty and students last night over the mysterious visit of President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California to this city. Mr. Wheeler has been offered the presidency of Tech, and a secret conference is now under way between the faculty committee and himself that is believed will have great bearing on the future of the Institute.

According to President Henry S. Pritchett, the matter is now entirely in the hands of Mr. Wheeler, and the faculty board is awaiting his acceptance or rejection of its offer of the presidency.

It is believed by persons well informed that, in the event of Mr. Wheeler's declination to accept the presidency, Ex-Governor John L. Bates will receive the official tender of the position.

MARSH HEADS LEAGUE FIGHT IN CAMBRIDGE

George Marsh of No. 7 Wendell street is the candidate of the Independence League party of Cambridge for the Common Council in Ward 9 of that city, to fill the vacancy caused by the death on April 16 of Henry C. Stetson. Philip Sharples is the candidate of the Non-Partisan party.

The nominations were settled at the primaries held in the Brattle street building yesterday and evening. Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans had candidates in the field for the nomination. Mr. Marsh has been promised the support of Democratic leaders and Mr. Sharples expects Republican support.

"I expect to be elected," said Mr. Marsh to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN. "I stand as the candidate of those who favor independence of boss rule and who are deeply interested in a Public Opinion law for this State."

The special election will be held June 18.

URGES ARREST OF "BREAKER" WHO FIRED GUN

Councilman Doyle Charges Brine Teamster with Firing Shot to Scare Boys.

Indignant because the police failed to arrest a strike-breaking teamster who pulled a revolver and fired it several times in the air to frighten away a number of boys, Councilman James J. Doyle of Ward 13 appears in court to-day asking for a warrant for the man's arrest.

According to the Councilman, the non-union teamster who did the shooting was Frederick Caulfield, a foreman employed by the R. S. Brine Company. The Councilman, who was a witness of the affair, reports that Caulfield drew a revolver on West Second street and fired two shots into the air. The boys scampered in all directions, but a large crowd of men and boys quickly assembled. Complaints were made at the Broadway Police Station against Caulfield, but, while they were regarded seriously, the men who made them were referred to the courts for redress.

At the same time that this happening was taking place two supposed strike-breakers were chased from the corner of D street and Broadway to Silver street. A plate glass window in the store of John Keating was broken, but the police have been unable to locate the perpetrators of the outrage.

A peculiar happening was reported at the Broadway police station by Frank Marion, a guard employed by the Boston Forwarding and Transportation Company, who was shot in the hand and treated at the Emergency Hospital.

Marion declares that he heard no report of any weapon, but the strike-breaker who was driving the wagon declares that he heard a shot in Marion's pocket. He explained the affair to the police as being caused by a sudden jolting of the truck. Marion was carrying the weapon in his trousers pocket, and when the wagon lurched it was discharged, the bullet tearing a hole through his hand.

"NEW IDEA" IS STARTED OFF BY CHURCHILL

NEWARK, N. J., June 5.—Two thousand persons crowded the New Auditorium last night to hear Winston Churchill, novelist and political reformer of New Hampshire, speak, and, incidentally, to be present at the launching of the new idea campaign of 1907 in this State. More than half the audience was composed of women.

Mr. Churchill told funny stories and frequently convulsed the audience with laughter over some humorous incident of his late campaign for the governorship of New Hampshire.

"The best book that I ever made," said he, "was one on which I have never received 1 cent of royalty. And it is the one I am proudest over. It is the $10 mileage book now sold in my State."

SUES FOR $10,000 FOR WIFE'S DEATH

TAUNTON, June 5.—Antone F. Rose has brought suit against the Old Colony Street Railway Company to recover $10,000 for fatal injuries sustained by his wife, Minnie Rose, at Rehoboth.

HUGO, IN COURT, SEEKS 'UNFAIR' BAN'S REMOLAL

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED IN BOTTLERS' INJUNCTION HEARING.

Sensational developments are promised in the hearing on the petition of George B. Hugo, bottler, for an injunction to restrain officers of the Central Labor Union and other labor unions from injuring his business through alleged intimidation of customers to break contracts, which is being heard by Judge Fessenden to-day in the Superior Court.

The testimony is being followed with intense interest by labor and capital, involving as it does the Employers' Association, the Master Teamsters' Association, the Master Brewers' Association, on one hand, and the Central Labor Union, which is composed of nearly every labor union in Greater Boston, on the other.

Although Hugo was placed on the unfair list by the Central Labor Union a year and a half ago, no real effort was made to enforce the rule until Hugo, who is president of the Employers' Association, took part in the war against the teamsters in their present strike. Several unions, since the teamsters' strike, took action, not only placing Hugo's bottling on the unfair list, but the brands of beer bottled by him.

The defendants are President Arthur M. Huddell, Secretary Henry Abrahams, Edward Cohen and Dennis D. Driscoll of the Central Labor Union, Edmund F. Ward of the Brewery Workers' Union, John D. O'Brien and Martin J. Mattimoe of the Bartenders' Union, O. F. Powers of the Bottlers and Drivers' Union and Dennis F. Donovan and Andrew Taylor of General Teamsters' Union No. 191.

Attorney J. J. Feeley appears for the complainant and George Fred Williams, Frederick W. Mansfield, John F. McDonald and Samuel W. Fuller for the respondents.

HOUSE VOTE ON BOYNTON BILL REBUKE TO COLE

Speaker's Tactics in Selecting Committee Are Sharply Criticized.

NEW CONFERENCE ASKED

Speaker John M. Cole of the House of Representatives is to have another chance to select a conference committee on the Moody Boynton bicycle railway bill that will "represent" the real sentiment of the House, for by a vote of 69 to 12, the House to-day reconsidered its action of yesterday, by which it accepted the unfavorable report of a first committee of conference.

The report of that committee was then rejected by a vote of 69 to 0, and on motion of Representative Dean of Wakefield the Senate was invited to a new conference.

To-day's action by the House constitutes another rebuke for Speaker Cole as a victory for Boynton. Cole's original appointments to a conference committee were promptly and sharply criticized by Boynton's sympathizers.

In spite of the rule on conference committee that the three conferees should truly "represent the vote" of each branch, Cole named for the first committee on the part of the House Patterson of Barnstable, M. G. Bennett of Boston and Coffin of West Newbury.

Patterson and Bennett were said to be anything but representatives of the attitude of the house. Coffin proved to be a real friend of the bill. He refused to serve with the others. It was then said that they had declared themselves on his side. Yesterday, however, they were found to be lined up five to one in favor of the House receding from its position.

She situation is as fololws: The House passed a bill renewing the Boynton charter for a single track bicycle railway known as the Boston, Quincy & Fall River Railway. The Senate substituted for this bill an act giving Boynton permission to petition the Railroad Commission under the interurban act of last year for a certificate of last year for a certificate of "public exigency." Each branch of the Legislature now seems disposed to hold fast to its position, with the House asking for a second conference.

PRESIDENT IS DETERMINED TO JAIL HARRIMAN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Criminal prosecution, with a prospect of a prison sentence, if he is convicted of violations of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, stares Edward H. Harriman in the face. That Harriman should be vigorously prosecuted at once was decided at a conference held at the White House between President Roosevelt and Franklin K. Lane, Interstate Commerce Commissioner. An attempt will also be made in the New York courts to make Harriman tell the details of his mergers to the Interstate Commerce Commission, he having so far defied their efforts to obtain the facts.

Mr. Lane was in conference with the President for over an hour and, when he left the White House, he announced that before July 1 legal proceedings will be instituted to compel Mr. Harriman to answer certain questions propounded to him by members of the commission at the recent hearing in New York when the Alton deal was under investigation.

Previous to his conference with the President, Commissioner Lane conferred with Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel for the government in the Harriman investigation. Mr. Kellogg, it is understood, will have a conference with the President some time this week, and will later go to New York to institute suit against Mr. Harriman to compel him to answer the questions regarding the Alton transaction.

At this conference all the members of the commission will be present and it will be definitely decided what action the administration is to take in regard to the criminal prosecutions against Mr. Harriman. While no date has been set for this conference, it probably will be held Thursday or Saturday of this week.

The proceedings to compel Mr. Harriman to answer the questions referred to will be brought in the courts of the Southern district of New York. Whether the prosecution or the defence should win the decision the case is expected to be appealed to the higher courts and ultimately to the United States Supreme Court.

According to opinions already expressed by members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, it may be a year or even more before final decision can be reached on these efforts to compel answers to the questions to which Mr. Harriman declined to respond.

For these reasons it was announced several weeks ago that the commission did not intend to await the result of these proceedings before taking action on the general subject of the investigation of the Harriman lines.

SHE REFUSED TO "WAIT"; MARCHED HIM TO CHURCH

Malden Girl Deaf to Brooklyn Fiance's Plea of Illness; Many See the Wedding.

In his father-in-law's house and surrounded by relatives of his bride, Clifford A. Sampson of Brooklyn, N. Y., to-day began his honeymoon in Malden.

Mrs. Clifford A. Sampson, who until last night was Miss Ethel May Towns of Salem street, Malden, and who went to Brooklyn and got Clifford and brought him to Malden where she married him last night, refused to-day to throw any additional light upon the swift change that had come over her fiance's plans after she met him in Brooklyn.

It developed to-day that although young Sampson reached Malden at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was not until an hour later that there was issued the marriage license which made it possible for Miss Towns to marry him.

Father-in-Law Got License.

And the entry in the clerk's office to-day shows that the license was secured not by the groom as is the usual custom, but by the bride's father.

The blinds in the Towns's home in Malden were all drawn to-day. The doorbell was unanswered. Inquiries were gently but none the less firmly entreated to ask questions about anything in the world except the wedding. And as Malden talked about nothing else, the mystery grew.

One thing became certain. This was that the illness from which Sampson was suffering according to the telegram his fiancee received Monday and which telegram was construed as evidence that Sampson wanted a postponement of the function at the church, has completely vanished.

The 500 guests that attended the nuptials at the Maplewood Methodist Church last night noted with gladness that no matter how ill Sampson had been in Brooklyn he was all right in Malden.

To the Altar, Unassisted.

He walked to the altar unassisted. His face was brown as a berry. In his eyes was the look of perfect health. He had the shoulders and chest and muscles which are needed in his business which, it was supposed, was that of athletic instructor in the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A.

Ever since he met Miss Towns he has told her that he was an athletic instructor but when she went to Brooklyn to bring him to Malden she found that he was not known at the Y. M. C. A.

However, this trifling circumstance was not permitted to interfere with Miss Towns's plans for the wedding. She waved away all those who asked her to tell something definite about Sampson's occupation.

Beyond saying that when she wrote to him she addressed him in care of the General Delivery in Brooklyn, she would say nothing. She would not even tell how she had found him in Brooklyn or where.

Her father said to-day:

"Poor Clifford was really sick. My daughter went after him, and they are now married. We have felt nothing except sympathy for the poor boy, and now we are all glad that he and my daughter are married."

Clifford Had the Ring.

The plans of the newly married pair are nebulous. Sampson brought nothing with him to Malden except the contents of a suit case.

Whether he will take his wife back to Brooklyn with him or whether they will settle down in Malden has not as yet been determined.

The Rev. Joseph Candlin who performed the marriage ceremony said to-day:

"I had made all plans for the wedding as it had originaaly been arranged. Then Miss Towns notified me that there would be a postponement. I was just getting ready to go to her mother to express my sympathy when Miss Towns notified me that the weding would take place anyway.

"Sampson had the ring with him and the ceremony was performed without a hitch."

MRS. PEPPER, SPIRITUALIST HEAD, WEDS

The Rev. Mary S. Pepper, head of the Fraternity of the Soul Communion Church, and one of the best known spiritualists in the country, has been married to Edward Ward Vanderbilt of Brooklyn, according to word that was received in Boston to-day.

Her former associates in the Onset Bay Spiritualist Association were surprised to-day when they heard of her wedding. They thought that she was on her way to St. Petersburg, where she intended to communicate to the Czar some intelligence concerning him which she said she had received from the spirit world.

Her new husband is a well-to-do lumber merchant who has offices in Liberty street, New York, and who lives at No. 197 Waverly avenue, Brooklyn.

"Not Now Defenceless."

Mrs. Pepper to-day made the following statement:

"I am not now defenceless. My husband will now answer any attack that is made upon me."

Mrs. Pepper's spiritualistic work has interested many well known men. One of them is former Surrogate Abram H. Daly, one of the oldest and best known lawyers in Brooklyn. Another is Isaac K. Funk of the publishing house of Funk & Wagnalls.

These men and others became greatly interested in Mrs. Pepper through revelations she made concerning "Little Bright Eyes," the spirit which she said controlled her.

George William Pepper, who says he never was the husband of Mrs. Mary Pepper, lives in this city.

Had Been a Dairymaid.

Two years ago in the course of one of the investigations of Mrs. Pepper her history was looked up and it was declared that she had been a dairymaid in Rhode Island and that her name was Mary Scannell. According to the story published at that time she met Pepper and the two went to New Bedford, Pepper leaving behind a wife and several children. Pepper subsequently married another woman and then his first wife charged him with bigamy.

In connection with that case the medium, now Mrs. Vanderbilt, made an affidavit that she had never been his legal wife, but she said that she had done so to get him out of trouble. She said that they had been regularly married in New York city in 1889 by a justice of the peace, she supposing he had been divorced from his first wife.

NORDICA PLANS BIG AMERICAN OPERA SCHOOL

NEW YORK, June 5.—Mme. Lillian Nordica will establish on the Hudson, near New York, a Bayreuth in America. With a part of her great fortune the noted singer will erect the Lillian Nordica festival house, which will be to this country what the famous operatic institution founded by Richard Wagner and now maintained by his widow is to Europe.

The site for the institution covers four acres and was purchased yesterday for $100,000, and Mme. Nordica expects that the opera house will be ready for its formal dedication one year from next Summer.

An American institute of music, where American young men and women who aspire to operatic honors will be taught by the foremost teachers in the world, is included in the plans of the famous singer.

PHILIPPINE ARMY "DOBIE ITCH"

Disease Contracted in the Philippine Service—Itching Pimples Covered Body — Army Surgeons Failed to Cure — Discharged for Disability—Cured by Cuticura, Now

A FIRM BELIEVER IN CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I enlisted in the Corps of Engineers as a telegraph operator, and, while stationed in the Philippines, I became subject to the "Dobie Itch," as the natives call it. In this disease small, white, itching pimples form under the skin, generally between the toes, on the limbs, between the fingers, and under the arms. I never knew of a case originating outside the Philippine Islands, but have known of many cases where it has returned in this country and invariably at the same time of the year as the original attack. The cause, so far as I could learn, was some tropical parasite or germ peculiar to that region.

"I got so bad that I was confined to my quarters a week at a time. The Army Surgeons applied some carbolic solution, and it would disappear for a time when it would break out again. I was discharged from the Engineers by reason of disability contracted in line of duty, and when I had the trouble again, my druggist, Mr. Z—, of Brooklyn, recommended Cuticura Remedies. The immediate relief was manifest with my first purchase, and the malady quickly yielded to the Remedies. It has never recurred or bothered me since I began to use and continued to use the Cuticura Remedies. You may quote me as a believer in Cuticura Remedies from personal experience. John S. Woods, 221 Sands St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 21 and 26, 1906."

Orchard on Stand to Swear That Haywood Ordered Him to Kill

SELF-CONFESSED SLAYER CENTRE OF INTEREST AT TRIAL OF MINERS TO-DAY.

rapid succession. Judge Wood finally allowed the defence to take a general exception to the prosecution's opening address, which they did.

After reciting the crime committed at Caldwell, Hawley began dealing with the persons involved.

"Frank Steunenberg was the best known man in Idaho," said he. "He had been Governor of this State. W. D. Haywood, C. H. Moyer, George A. Pettibone and Harry Orchard were members of the Western Federation of Miners.

"I wish to call attention to the charge. The indictment charges that the defendant, Haywood, exploded the bomb that killed Frank Steunenberg. But we do not expect to prove that he or his associates were present in Caldwell, or that he actually threw that bomb."

Explains "Conspiracy" Charge.

The chief prosecutor explained the law of Idaho, which makes an accessory a principal, and said that the law, compelled the direct charge.

As Hawley was reaching the substance of his case, Haywood gave strict attention to his remarks and never removed his eyes from the lawyer.

"We expect to prove," continued Hawley, "that this crime was the result of a conspiracy in the Western Federation of Miners, and that the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners are responsible to the law.

"We will show that the Western Federation of Miners, as an organization, became a fact in 1893.

"Prior to that time, throughout the West, there were various labor organizations in the mining camps. In that year these unions were consolidated.

"The headquarters of this federation is in Denver. Ostensibly the organization is governed by a convention, which meets only once a year.

"We will show that the leaders who constituted the 'inner circle,'" Hawley resumed, "traded in blood and left a trail of crime throughout the mining region.

"We will show that this 'inner circle' did these crimes to levy assessments to get money for their own use. We will show that Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone have been for eight years members of this inner circle. Steunenberg was not the chief purpose of this conspiracy."

Prosecutor Discloses Little.

The opening of the statement by the prosecution was finished with the disclosure of only a part of what is to be urged in proof of the existence of this conspiracy to murder, as asserted by the State. The rest is to be handed to Haywood's lawyers as soon as the prosecution can prepare the documents.

Though Mr. Hawley admitted his inability to present all his material in his outline to the jury, he contributed enough to show the stupendous task the prosecution has assumed in undertaking to account for every overt act committed in the mining district from 1899 to the attack upon Idaho's ex-Governor.

It was apparent from the first that he source of the inspiration which prompted Mr. Hawley to trace the trial of blood by "hired murderers" is Harry Orchard's confession.

After the opening address there is left no doubt that Harry Orchard will be relied upon as the man who must convince the jury, if any one does, that William D. Haywood devoted the funds of the Western federation to the purpose of assassination.

Mentions McPartland.

Only two names were mentioned by Hawley as witnesses by whom the facts disclosing this appalling conspiracy would be established, Orchard and Captain James McPartland. The latter is the detective who induced the murderer of Steunenberg to confess.

When Mr. Hawley finished he had in no way indicated just how the jury was to be satisfied of the truth of his assertion that there existed an "inner circle" of the Western Federation. He did not tell, as usual in opening statements, how the State proposed to prove one accusation. It may be that the policy the State has maintained so successfully up to this point is to be pursued steadfastly until the witnesses themselves make the connection between Haywood and the tragedy.

If there had not been seated in the courtroom a man on trial for his life, if there had not been beside him a pallid woman reclining in an invalid chair and a little girl of ten years with one hand resting upon the shoulder of the father and the other clasping the fingers of the cripple mother, the exhibition by James H. Hawley would have been humorous, rather than impressive.

Hawley Floundered.

Only for a few sentences could he keep to his text, and every flight of eloquence attempted met the cold objection of the trained legal minds at the defence counsel table. A bait, an argument, a testy retort by the speaker and the attorney floundered about to piece up the broken phrases and proceed.

Hawley is of the frontier lawyer type, a kind of legal gentleman, who, as the local description has it, does not prepare his case, but "deals the cards when the deck happens to come to him."

Hardly one sentence of his opening was grammatical and nearly every paragraph was an argument. Realizing that the world was looking down at him and listening, Mr. Hawley started with a handicap, and he could not overcome it. He wished to impale the Western Federation of Miners in his opening sentences, and he had hardly arranged the spike before Mr. Darrow stopped his description of the organization.

How Governor Was Killed.

C. F. Wayne was called as the first witness yesterday. Mr. Wayne formerly resided in Caldwell, the home of Governor Steunenberg, and next door to the Governor's place. Wayne said he was working in the Steunenberg place on the night of the explosion, December 30, 1905. He had just gone into his own home when the explosion occurred. The lights of his house were extinguished. He rushed out and hearing a noise at the Governor's house, went there and saw the results of the bomb. The Governor was badly mangled and his clothing torn off from the waist down. The fence and gate were shattered. Wayne rushed for a doctor and friends of the dying man. Governor Steunenberg died within half an hour. The explosion occurred about 6:30 o'clock. Wayne said he had been through the gate to which the exploding string of the bomb was attached, just fifteen minutes before the Governor. The string evidently had been made fast but a few minutes preceding the Governor's arrival.

Orchard Implicated.

The defence did not desire to cross-examine the witness and he was excused to make way for Dr. J. W. Gue of Caldwell, who attended the dying man. He described in detail the fearful injuries wrought by the bomb. The bones were shattered by the concussion, the physician declared.

Dr. Gue was also excused without cross-examination and John C. Rice, an attorney of Caldwell, was called. He lived near Governor Steunenberg. Rice testified to seeing Harry Orchard passing his home almost every day for a month preceding the tragedy. He was either going toward or returning from the direction of Governor Steunenberg's residence. The man, known under the alias of Thomas Hogan, seemed to have no business. One day he said Hogan inquired of him if a vacant house near the Governor's residence was for rent. Rice said he did not know. The defence objected to this portion of Rice's testimony, but it was overruled. Rice declared that Hogan was the same person afterward addressed as Harry Orchard.

Tried to Find Concealment.

Cross-examined by Attorney Richardson of the defence. Rice said Orchard had made attempts to conceal himself. His attention was first directed to the man by his wife, who had noticed him for several days.

N. S. Ellis, a merchant of Caldwell, was the next witness. He said he was building a house near Governor Steunenberg's residence and saw Thomas Hogan, or Harry Orchard, in the vicinity on many occasions. Orchard usually kept his eyes upon the Steunenberg residence. At times he carried field glasses and used them for observation purposes.

On cross-examination Ellis said that while he wondered what Orchard was doing, his curiosity had not been excited to the extent of making inquiries.

A. Ballentine of Caldwell was called at the afternoon session. He testified to seeing Thomas Horgan, or Harry Orchard, in and about Caldwell prior to the tragedy. He was not cross-examined.

Governor's Son Testifies.

Senator Borah next directed the calling of Julien Steunenberg, the twenty-year-old son of the dead Governor. As the stalwart, broad-shouldered young man, with blonde hair walked to the elevated witness chair, which is almost in the centre of the big room, all eyes were turned on him.

He made firm replies to all the questions put to him and looked from time to time at the defendant, who returned the gaze intently. There was no sign of feeling, however, in the look of either.

Steunenberg told of meeting Orchard in Caldwell some days prior to his father's assassination.

An objection by the defence to young Steunenberg's testifying to a conversation he had with Orchard was overruled by Judge Wood.

Tells of Interview.

"I was at the Oregon Short Line depot one day," said Steunenberg, "when the man came to me and asked if my name was Steunenberg. I said yes, and he then asked when my father would be back in the city. He said his name was Hogan and that he and my father had some business in regard to the sheep. He said they would have another transaction in the future. I told him father would be home Friday, and he then wanted to know where he could find him on his return. I told him where our residence was and where my father's office was."

The defence moved to have all this testimony stricken out as immaterial and incompetent. Senator Borah said he would connect the conversation with Orchard, and was sustained.

Several witnesses expected by the state were delayed in reaching Boise, and this necessitated an early adjournment.

SOCIETY OUT TO PICK CANINE PRIZE WINNERS

Riverside Dog Show Opens with Many Famous Enthusiasts in Attendance.

LARGE LIST OF ENTRIES

Mrs. Burke-Roche, now Mrs. Aurel Batonyi, and her husband are enthusiasts of enthusiasts among the social leaders who are attending the open-air bench show of the Ladies' Kennel Association at Riverside to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Batonyi came here from Newport to-day with several of the best dogs she has in her celebrated Elm Court Kennels in Middletown.

Her favorite dogs, which she entered today, are: Elm Court, Queen Nell, Elm Court Champion, Fort Lee Girl, Elm Court Lad, Elm Court Lynch, Elm Court Hebe and Elm Court Fly.

Society never took greater zest than it does in the Ladies' Kennel Association bench show at Riverside to-day. There are no less than 813 entries. This is an unusually large number of entries for any one day show. All of the well known social dog lovers of New England are on the ground.

Mrs. Aurel Batonyi has entered her famous toy bull terriers. Daphne, a champion, is expected to win new laurels. Mrs. Batonyi's horses and dogs and all their prize-winning was eclipsed when she startled society about a year ago by announcing her marriage to the professional whip. But though she has been abroad, her interest in horses and dogs is as keen as ever.

Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster of Newport shows her cocker spaniels. Miss Alice Brownell, also of Newport, has entered her Boston terriers.

Much interest centres in the show this year, as more than a usual number of prizes is offered. Mrs. Albert Geiger, a new member of the club, shows her imported Daschunds.

Mrs. Charles Whitney of Milton is the only woman judge and is to pass upon the merits of Yorkshire and Maltese terriers.

The judges are: Charles W. Keyes, ex-Representative Fred Bearse, J. A. Telling, Dr. James S. Howe and I. W. Comey of Newton.

MRS. M'KINLEY LEFT $200,000

CANTON, O., June 5.—Mrs. Barber, sister of Mrs. McKinley and sole heir, was yesterday oppointed administratrix of Mrs. McKinley's estate. The Mrs. McKinley estate is valued at $135,00 in personal property and $67,000 real estate. This is exclusive of the estate of the President, which by will goes to his direct heirs, Mrs. Duncan and Miss Helen McKinley of Cleveland and Mrs. Hermanus Baer (Mabel McKinley).

STEEL TRUST BLAMED FOR HOST SLAIN ON RAILROADS

Bay State Will Investigate Railway Heads' Charges That Rails Are Unsafe.

Although none of the railway accidents in Massachusetts in the past year have been due to the broken or defective rails, according to Chairman Jackson of the State Railway Commission, disasters in New Hampshire are declared to have been caused by this source and they are to play an important part in an investigation just started by the leading railway officials of the country to compel the United States Steel corporation to furnish safer and more reliable steel rails in the future.

The American Railway Association, composed of the executive heads and operating chiefs of railway systems representing 230,000 miles of trackage in this country, have just named a committee which is to deal with the great steel corporation which makes nearly all of the railway rails for the country and force it to supply better rails.

"There appears to have been no recent instance of serious accidents on account of defective rails in this State," said Chairman Jackson to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day.

Investigate Bay State Roads.

But it is known that when the heads of the railways begin their investigation as to the conditions of roadbeds all over the country those of Massachusetts railways, as well as those of New Hampshire are to be examined. The American Railway Association has determined to do everything which it can to put a stop to those accidents in which thousands are killed yearly, more thousands injured and millions of dollars' worth of property destroyed, in many cases, through poor steel rails.

The investigation committee is made up as follows: G. L. Peck, general manager Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, chairman; J. T. Richards, chief engineer maintenance of way, Pennsylvania Railroad; J. Kruttschnitt, vice president Southern Pacific Company; W. J. Wilgus, vice president New York Central & Hudson River Railroad; R. Montfort, consulting engineer Louisville & Nashville Railroad; E. C. Carter, chief engineer Chicago & Northwestern Railway; William Garstang, superintendent motive power Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway; R. L. Ettenger, consulting mechanical engineer Southern Railway; W. E. Fowler, master car builder Canadian Pacific Railway.

Previous to the combined atcion of the railroads all traffic men were keenly cognizant of the sinister methods of the Steel Trust, but none felt strong enough to antagonize the powerful corporation that directly or indirectly furnishes so much traffic and can withhold from any road the rails necessary for its operation.

Harriman Leads the Revolt.

E. H. Harriman, however, was too big to be bound by any such traffic diplomacy and recently he gave an order for 150,000 tons of rails to the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company, practically the only independent plant in the country. He did so after Mr. Kruttschnitt, vice-president o fthe Southern Pacific, notified him that four hundred and forty-nine rails on his line had broken in the month of February. Of these one hundred and seventy-nine had been in service less than six months. Mr. Harriman was quoted as saying with the order:

"The lives of the passengers on the Southern Pacific are more valuable than the necesity for dividends on steel stocks."

Mr. Harriman's example has strengthened the hands of the American Railway Association, which, through its committee, intends to make a finish fight. Every railway executive of importance in the country has been consulted on the subject and promised to sustain the committee and the association.

At a recent meeting of the American Railway Association in Chicago, G. L. Peck, general manager of the Pennsylvania lines West, asked that any one of the traffic men present who was satisfied with the rails furnished by the United States Steel Corporation raise his hand. Practically every railroad in the country was represented, but not a hand was raised.

Rails Dangerous, Schwab Says.

Charles W. Schwab, former head of the Steel Trust, in a talk with a BOSTON AMERICAN representative, said frankly that the rails turned out to-day by the steel company are poor in quality and dangerous. He declared that the Bessemer process must be supplanted by the open hearth system, and that a higher priced rail must be manufactured.

The rail pool—both in this country and in Europe—is absolute. Experts prove that previous to 1901, the year the United States Steel Corporation was formed, approximately 350,000 tons of rails were exported. The year the trust was formed the international rail poor was organized, territory was allotted, and prices were fixed. The price of rails to-day in London is approximately the same as in New York, rates having attained that equality with the formation of the Steel Trust in this country.

Before 1902 any road in the country could have its rails made according to specification, and in this way a standard rail was obtained. With the organization of the Steel Trust this right was withdrawn. The Steel Trust adopted its own grade of manufacture and told the roads that specifications would no longer be accepted. It was a case of "take it or leave it," and owing to the enormous traffic demands upon the roads, the great power of the steel corporation and the allied interests, the railroad men of the country were forced to submit until the defective rails became such a menace that the problem could no longer be ignored and drastic action was imperative.

Trust Knows Rails Are Weak.

The complaint of the railway men of the country—that is, the railway men in charge of road construction—is that no one in the world knows better how to make good rails than the United States Steel Company with its superbly efficient army of experts. The charge is made that, to meet demand, to turn out a great tonnage and because it has no competition, the trust knowingly furnishes rails which break, causing wrecks and consequent loss of life.

The assertion is made that it is not the cost of a better rail that the steel company opposes, but the loss of tonnage. To make a safer rail would take a longer time in the rolling process, and while ther would be no great loss in material, the output would be substantially reduced.

The opinion seems to be general among railroad executives that four causes contribute to make the present rail turned out by the United States Steel Corporation defective.

Causes for Bad Quality.

First—The Mesaba range ore used in the Bessemer process has a larger quantity of phosphorus than other ore. This makes the use of a high per centage of carbon impossible. The carbon makes the rail hard. In cooling the phosphorus and other impurities work to the surface of the ingot. The ingot should be trimmed at least thirty per cent to get rid of this brittle and impure part, but the trimming is really only to the extent of eight per cent, leaving an ingot brittle and with much more phosphorescenec than the best specification allows.

Second—With the Bessemer process and the ores now used it is extremely difficult to keep down the phosphorus. A high phosphorus content with a high corbon added, give hardness and wearing qualities and makes brittle steel. Open hearth rails furnish the solution of this difficulty.

Third—In the effort for output the rails are being finished at too high a temperature and are not receiving "work" enough in the rolls. Before this can be remedied it will be necessary to make some changes in the cross section, but the gravest defects can be adjusted by less haste.

Four—In hammering or straightening, the rail after it leaves the roll it is treated with such haste and roughness that "pipes" or elongated cracks are superinduced, and at the first strain from the contact of a moving train the line of cleavage cracks and the rail separates.

Predicts Costlier Rails.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Company, which promises to become an active competitor of the Trust in the rolling of steel rails, when asked his views concerning the alarming increase in rail breakages, said:

"When I was in the Steel Corporation I advised that preparations be made to meet the need of the railroads in the matter of rails. As I remember, it was five or six years ago that I came to the positive conclusion that a better rail would be an absolute necessity on account of the constantly increasing speed and weight of trains.

"The day is not far distant when the railroads will pay three times $28 a ton for the rails on which to carry their trains, and producing mills must be specially equipped to meet the demand. Very little has been done by the corporation or by any one else to anticipate the demands of the railroads except what we have done at Bethlehem, where our works were equipped to supply basic open-hearth steel rails, which the railroads now agree is a superior rail and must in time supplant the Bessemer to a very great extent.

"Getting the best is merely the matter of paying for it, and it will presently be recognized that the railroads can afford to have none but the best. Breakage can never bemade impossible, but it can be reduced to the minimum, and that is what the railroads and people will agree must be done."

Revise the Tariff.

"Something must be done," declared one railroad official, the vice president and executive head of one of the greatest trunk lines in the country, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"What is the remedy?" asked the newspaper man.

"Revise the tariff," came the answer like a shot. "As long as the Steel Corporation is able to control the market, deliver the rails that it thinks good enough, and the railroad is helpless to go elsewhere, the trouble cannot be eradicated unless the railroads acting as a unit demand a change and refuse to accept rails unsatisfactory, and that is hardly probable."

BOOKER WASHINGTON ROOSEVELT NEIGHBOR

The house at Weymouth, which for some years has been the Summer home of Booker T. Washington, has been rented, and the negro educator will this year be a neighbor of President Roosevelt on Long Island.

Mr. Washington was in Boston yesterday and before leaving denied that the desire to be near the President had anything whatever to do with determining the location of his Summer home.

CHEER UP! TWO MORE FAIR DAYS ARE PROMISED

New England is promised fair weather for at least two days to come by the weather-man.

"Fair to-night and Thursday—and, possibly, Friday," he declares from his conning tower in the federal building. But he doesn't promise any real warm weather.

"The thermometer may flirt around 60 or 65 degrees above, but I think there is not any good Summer weather in sight," said Mr. Smith to-day.

"There are no storms on the map now. The one we had several days ago has lost itself in the wilds of Labrador and beyond. It cannot possibly swing around New England way again."

While the outlook is not for a good, cheery wave that farmers are praying for, still fair weather is coming for two days, at least.

Y. M. C. A. SCHOOL HAS 1802 STUDENTS

Commencement exercises of the Evening Law School of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association will be held this evening in Association Hall. During the year 1,802 students were enrolled in the association school, the largest enrollment of any similar educational institution in the United States. A program of great interest has been planned for this evening's exercises.

ACTORS' FUND BURIES BOOTH'S OLD MANAGER

Once the manager of Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barret, Dion Boucicault and the elder Sothern, Hiram Davis will be buried in a Boston cemetery at the expense of the Actors' Fund of America. The arrangements for the funeral of the once prosperous and notable theatrical manager are in charge of Manager Lothian of the Colonial Theatre.

The aged manager, who numbered among his friends the most famous actors and managers of the American stage, died yesterday amid strangers at the Holy Ghost Hospital, Cambridge. He was seventy years old, and his death was due to an illness which had its inception in the want and privation that clouded the closing years of his life.

He was discovered a year ago in a cheap lodging house on Temple street, Boston. Miss Elsie Janis, the star of "The Vanderbilt Cup," which was then playing at the Colonial Theatre, rescued Davis from his misfortune, and with other members of the profession provided for him, pending the action of the Actors' Fund, which since that time has given the veteran manager tender care and support.

DESPONDENT, TRIES SUICIDE

BROCKTON, June 5.—Despondent through fourteen weeks' illness, Arthur Allen, aged fifty years and residing at No. 72 Vine street, last night attempted suicide by strangling himself with a trunk strap. He is at the Brockton City Hospital. His life is despaired of.

BEEF GOES UP, SALES GO DOWN

Prices in beef have been materially increased in Boston during the past few days, but the increase has not been nearly as great as was anticipated.

The beef markets in Chicago have been uneven for the past week and high prices have prevailed. Only the poorest cuts of meat have been available for local consumption.

Beef ise selling, at wholesale, in the Boston market at 9½ cents a pound. Lamb ranges from 15½ to 16 cents a pound. Fresh pork sells at 12 cents; salt pork and smoked shoulders at 10 and 11 cents, and smoked hams from 14 to 16 cents.

The general supply in meats has fallen off fully 25 per cent during the past week, local dealers declare, although the market is not yet considered "short."

ITALY REDUCES FUNDS FOR WAR

ROME, June 5.—Action which puts Italy on record as opposing the increase of armaments has just been taken by the Parliamentary Commission.

An appropriation of $40,000,000 was asked for artillery and fortifications. The commission has just cut the figures to $12,000,000. Coming just before The Hague conference where the disarmament question may play an important part, the action is regarded as significant.

SNAPSHOT MAN TAKES 'DOUBLE SIX' JOURNEY

If He Casts His Photographic Eye on You It May Be Worth Ten Dollars.

HERE'S A GRAND CHANCE

The BOSTON AMERICAN'S Snapshot Man goes out to-morrow for his "Double-Sixer."

"Double-sixes?" you ask.

The answer to that query is easy.

This will make the Snapshot Man's sixth trip.

That's one "six."

To-morrow is the sixth day of the month.

One "six" and another "six" are two sixes. Hence the "Double-Sixes."

The Snapshot Man is getting to be a mathematic marvel.

It's All on the Square.

"O, pshaw!" you say, "what's all this about mathematics? What we want to know is where the Snapshot Man is going to be; also what time of day he is going to be there?"

What's the matter with Adams square? What's the matter with the middle of the day? All in favor of Adams Square to-morrow in the middle of the day please signify by—by—well, by being there.

The Snapshot Man, as on his previous trips, will go around and take pictures on the square, in more sense than one. Sunday he will publish ten pictures. These will be the Snapshot Ten. If your picture is among them you are entitled to ten dollars. Come to the BOSTON AMERICAN office at No. 82 Summer street, identify yourself to the Snapshot Man and he will do the rest.

The Snapshot Man is getting all kinds of fun out of this contest. In the first place, it is a pleasure, of course, to give people ten dollars. It naturally makes them smile. They tell the Snapshot Man that he is a great institution. And the Snapshot Man is too much of a gentleman to dispute them.

Occasionally there are arguments. People will look so amazingly alike at times. The Snapshot Man remembers one picture claimed as theirs by eight different men. And every one of them was sincere in his declaration. But the right one was selected, the identification being made beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Women do not get so confused as men in this regard. Why? Not because woman may not look alike. But because their clothes help the identification. Take a photograph of a man in a blue suit and a black derby hat. There will be a hundred men dressed the same way about the same time and in about the same neighborhood.

You may be in the Snapshot group next Sunday. Buy a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN and find out for certain. It may mean ten dollars for you.

COURT GRANTS SLAYER TIME FOR HONEYMOON

Postponement of Sentence Reveals Romance of the Tombs.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A romance of the Tombs came to light yesterday, when Thomas Walsh, in pleading guilty to a charge of manslaughter in the first degree growing out of the killing of Robert Williams, a negro, asked that sentence be postponed until June 20, so that he might pass his honeymoon with his newly-married wife. Inquiry developed the fact that Walsh was married a week ago. Judge Rosalsky decided to grant Walsh's request, and for two weeks he will be permitted to receive his wife daily in the prison as a visitor.

Walsh faces probably twenty years' imprisonment at the conclusion of his honeymoon, this being the maximum punishment for his crime.

When asked what he had to say why sentence should not be passed, he said:

"I would like to ask you to postpone sentencing me until June 20."

"Why?" queried Judge Rosalsky.

"Well, you see, Judge, I have just been married and I would like to spend my honeymoon with my wife."

Judge Rosalsky started an investigation, which showed that Walsh's fiancee has stuck to him through his trouble and married him a week ago.

CUT OFF WITH A SUGAR BOWL

Cut off with the legacy of a silver sugar bowl and tongs which she claims were hers anyway, as they were given to her by her own mother, Mrs. Susan B. Allen of El Dorado, Kan., is contesting in the Supreme Court the will of a cousin, Miss Elizabeth B. Maxwell of Milton, who left her valuable library to the town of Milton.

In addition to the bequests to Milton, Miss Maxwell disposed of $2,100 in private legacies and the remainder of her $20,000 estate goes in equal shares to the First Congregational Society of Milton, the Roxbury Charitable Society, the Home for Aged Women on Copeland street, Roxbury; the Home for Aged Couples, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the McLean Asylum for the Insane and the Home for Aged Colored Women.

TO SPEND $200,000 ON STATE CHARITIES

CONCORD, N. H., June 5.—arrangements were made to-day for the expenditure of $200,000 for State benevolent institutions. The trustees for the State Hospital for the Insane met at the office of Charles P. Bancroft, superintendent, and awarded a contract for the election of new buildings amounting to $123,000 to Charles L. Fellows & Co. The balance of a $150,000 appropriation will be expended in fitting up the buildings.

A State sanatarium for consumptives is to be erected, costing $50,000.

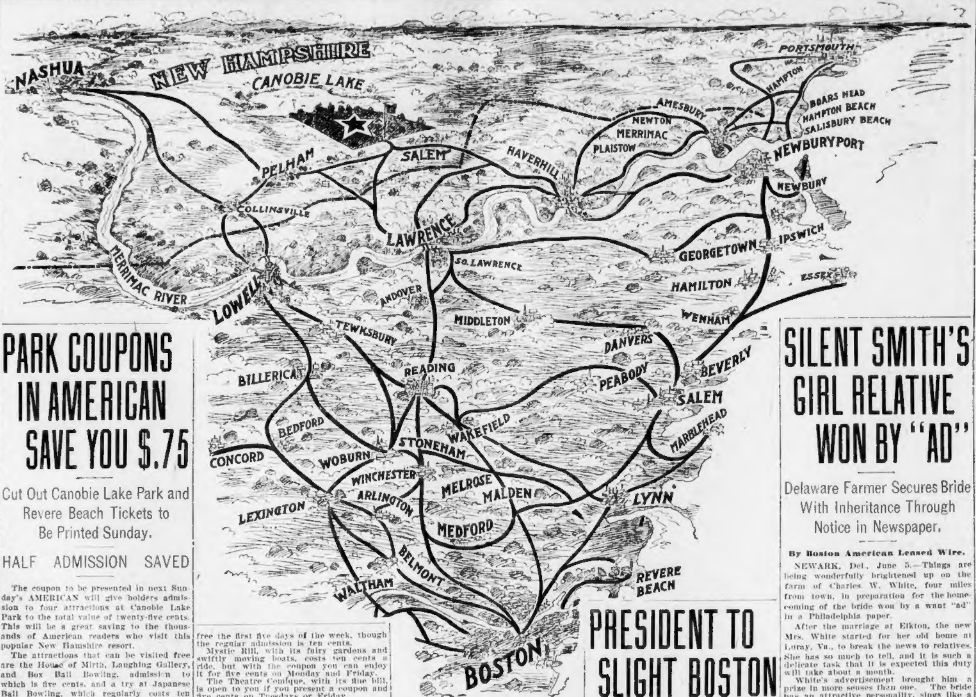
HOW AMERICAN COUPON HOLDERS REACH CANOBIE LAKE



PARK COUPONS IN AMERICAN SAVE YOU $.75

Cut Out Canobie Lake Park and Revere Beach Tickets to Be Printed Sunday.

HALF ADMISSION SAVED

The coupon to be presented in next Sunday's AMERICAN will give holders admission to four attractions at Canobie Lake Park to the total value of twenty-five cents. This will be a great saving to the thousands of American readers who visit this popular New Hampshire resort.

The attractions that can be visited free are the House of Mirth, Laughing Gallery, and Box Ball Bowling, admission to which is five cents, and a try at Japanese Ball Bowling, which regularly costs ten cents.

The coupon will be published in four sections which may be torn off as used at the several places of amusement. These may be used either Monday or Friday afternoon and evening.

On Monday and Friday of this week those who have cut out the AMERICAN coupons are enjoying the Cycle Swing, Roller Coaster, Merry-Go-Round and a steam launch ride upon the beautiful lake.

Canobie Lake Park is the central amusement place for Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Nashua, Salem (New Hampshire) and Manchester. The cars run frequently and swiftly and the fares are reasonable. It is also a beautiful spot worth visiting from Boston. It is fourteen miles from Haverhill, twenty-two from Lowell, twelve from Lawrence, sixteen from Nashua and in convenient touch with Manchester, N. H., by a new trolley connection.

VISIT THE FINEST REVERE RESORTS AT HALF PRICE

Now is the time to plan a trip next week through the finest attractions at Revere Beach at half price, with the aid of BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons. Thousands of these coupons cut out last Sunday are being used this week. By getting the AMERICAN next Sunday for five cents, the purchaser can save half a dollar or more.

Cut out the long string of Revere Beach coupons and you may visit ten or more attractions for half price in every instance but one. The exception is the Rollaway Skating Rink, where with an AMERICAN coupon you will be admitted free the first five days of the week, though the regular admission is ten cents.

Mystic Rill, with its fairy gardens and swiftly moving boats, costs ten cents a ride, but with the coupon you can enjoy it for five cents on Monday and Friday.

The Theatre Comique, with its fine bill, is open to you if you present a coupon and five cents on Tuesdays or Friday.

Manager Speer's roller coaster, which costs five cents for a hair-raising ride, will accept a coupon and five cents for two tickets on every day but Sunday.

At the Crescent Garden Theatre five cents and a coupon admits you to a ten cent seat in the oldest playhouse on the beach Tuesday or Thursday.

At the Rough Rider Hippodrome, Manager Bopp will give you two tickets for a coupon and a nickel on Monday or Tuesday and while riding the fiery steeds you can watch the Dan Cupids and hear the $10,000 organ play.

At the Musical Railway, where you fly round and round, the regular price is a dime, but a nickel and a SUNDAY AMERICAN coupon pay for the trip on the first five days of the week.

The Automobile Race, a thriller from start to finish, is open to you on the first five days of the week for a coupon and a nickel.

The Scenic Temple, holding 1,500 people, will honor the AMERICAN coupon, giving a ten cent seat for a nickel Tuesday and Wednesday.

Have you visited the Natural History room at No. 108 Boulevard yet? Have you seen the extraordinary freaks of nature, in the calf with two heads, the sheep with two faces, the lamb with two heads?

Manager E. Diamond obtained these specimens, carefully stuffed and preserved from Nova Scotia, Connecticut and Texas at a great expense. He says they are the most marvelous to be found, and offers $500 if they are not perfect and absolutely genuine.

All next week Manager Diamond will receive BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN coupon holders at No. 108 Boulevard, and give you two tickets of admission to his marvels for a nickel and an AMERICAN coupon.

FLEES HUSBAND FOR MAN SHE SAVED FROM GUTTER

Mission Worker and Temperance Orator Vanish from Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., June 5.—That Mrs. William T. Lockwood, founder of the Lockwood Rescue Home for Women and the leading home missionary of this city, has eloped with John Ferris, a temperance orator, whom she reclaimed from a drunkard's life, is the belief of her husband, who states that he thinks she has gone to Providence, R. I., with Ferris. He declares he is through with her forever, and says he will take no steps toward finding the missing pair.

Mrs. Lockwood's reported elopement created a sensation in church circles in this city. The later announcement that she had withdrawn the entire deposit of the mission home from the private bank of T. L. Watson & Co., this city, before leaving, came as a greater blow. It is surmised that Mrs. Lockwood had command of as much as $1,000 at a time.

Ferris was once a theological student, but abandoning the paths of a clergyman's life he entered the saloon business almost in the shadow of Yale University. Unfortunate in business he sank to the gutter, until two months ago he was attracted to an open-air meeting outside of the Lockwood mission. He became converted and entered the home as a sort of caretaker.

Mrs. Lockwood's friendship for Ferris was regarded merely as the result of a common zeal for the furtherance of their mission work, but when on May 20 both attended a performance of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show, during the temporary absence of Mr. Lockwood, a mild scandal resulted.

Ferris and Mrs. Lockwood are said to have left Bridgeport together at noon Monday, taking Ferris's five-year-old son with them. Ferris's wife abandoned him several months ago. He leaves four other children, but these are all in good hands.

Mrs. Lockwood possessed the confidence and regard of the business and religious life of the city, for her work in the city's tenderloin was universally regarded as most potent and charitable. The home has been closed temporarily.

CALLS COLLEGE UN-CHRISTIAN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

ST. LOUIS, June 5.—That the University of Chicago is a hot-bed of infidelity and is inimical to the Christian religion by 'its destructive higher criticisms' is the charge made by the Rev. Dr. Gustavus A. Hoffman, in his answer to a petition of Bible College at Columbia, Mo., which has sued Haffman on his note for $5,000. The answer filed yesterday is the result of efforts to collect a fund for Bible College.

The occasion of the attack is the employment of Charles Manford Sharpe as lecturer by Bible College.

TIRED OF BOSS RULE, UNIONIST JOINS LEAGUE

W. L. Crosman of Typographical Union 13 Quits Democracy for New Party.

One of the most prominent union labor men to change his enrolment to the Independence League is W. L. Crosman. He is a member of Typographical Union No. 13 and is employed on the Boston Journal. Mr. Crosman is president of the Ward 9 Independence League. He was formerly a Democrat. To a reporter of the Boston American he gave his reasons for joining the new party in the following language:

"I voted the Independence League ticket last Fall because I believe in the principles enunciated in the League platform, and believed the candidates were sincere in their advocacy of every plank in that excellent platform.

"Candidates of the Democratic party usually use a platform to get elected on, and when elected ignore principles that could make for the betterment of the social and material conditions of mankind.

"Every workingman should realize that the Republican party stands for plutocratic policies and the special privilege class. A notable instance of the exception to this rule is Representative Luce, who made a gallant and noble fight for the Public Opinion bill and the bill for direct nomination of candidates for elective office.

"As a trade unionist I am heartily in favor of the many planks in the League platform espousing the principles sought to be enacted into law by organized labor.

"In order to establish 'a government of the people, by the people, and for the people,' to use Lincoln's memorial words, it is necessary for voters to cast their ballots for sincere and honest men who believe in justice to all, and I believe candidates of the Independence League will always measure up to that standard."

PRESIDENT TO SLIGHT BOSTON FOR CAPE TRIP

Cites Provincetown Engagement as Reason for Declining Old Home Invitation.

Because of his prior promise to attend the dedication of the monument to the Pilgrims at Provincetown in August, President Roosevelt will be unable to accept the invitation to come to Boston during the Old Home Week celebration.

This is a disappoint not only to Boston, but to Providence, Lynn and Attleboro, where Old Home Week observances are to be held at the same time.

Governor Guild, who sent the invitation, on behalf of the State and city of Boston, yesterday received the following letter from the President:

The President's Regrets

Dear Governor—I would like to grant any request of yours, and particularly a request to come to Boston during Old Home Week, but it will not be possible, in view of my already having engaged to visit the monument at Provincetown. With real regret, believe me, Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

There was a conference at the Mayor's office yesterday to consider systemizing collections of subscriptions.

Mayor Calls for $100,000.

Among those present were Joseph F. O'Neil, General Charles W. Bartlett, Wallace L. Pierce, Joseph H. Thomas, Edwin E. Atkins, Frederick O. Woodruff, John C. Cobb, Edward E. Cole, William J. McDonald, Robert Winsor, Charles S. Cook, Freeman M. Crosby, James J. Phelan and Director Anderson of the Old Home Week Committee.

"This is a matter," said Mayor Fitzgerald, "in which every citizen of Boston should manifest his public spirit and do everything possible to make this home-coming celebration and reunion a big success, no matter whether he directly benefits from it in a financial way or not."

"This Old Home Week celebration, with the elaborate seven days' programme that has been planned and the big crowds of homecomers and others that are coming on to enjoy it will be one of the best things for Boston that ever happened. It is being advertised extensively all over the country, and we ought to spend at least $100,000 in carrying it out."

SILENT SMITH'S GIRL RELATIVE WON BY "AD"

Delaware Farmer Secures Bride With Inheritance Through Notice in Newspaper.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEWARK, Del., June 5.—Things are being wonderfully brightened up on the farm of Charles W. White, four miles from town, in preparation for the homecoming of the bride won by a want "ad" in a Philadelphia paper.

After the marriage at Elkton, the new Mrs. White started for her old home at Luray, Va., to break the news to relatives. She has so much to tell, and it is such a delicate task that it is expected this duty will take about a month.

White's advertisement brought him a prize in more senses than one. The bride has an attractive personality, sings like a lark and plays the violin. She is only twenty-five years old.

Miss Smith Replies.

The "ad" appeared on March 17, the first reply left Waynesboro, March 18 and the second March 22, so little time was lost. The second answer reads:

"Dear Friend—I received your letter to-day and was pleased with it. I am sure since I read your letter that you are a gentleman. I am sorry I have no small photo of myself. I am sending a large one. I don't think the difference in our ages matters much, for the young men all get tired of their wives quick.

"Your fried,

"HELEN SMITH."

Other letters were exchanged which led up to the marriage.

The new wife proves to be related to "Silent" Smith, the multimillionaire, and is heiress to $60,000. She has property and a bank account.

Reveals Relationship.

It was after the wedding was over that the new wife remarked that probably they would have money enough to fix up the farm, and then mentioned the reason why.

The "ad" read as follows:

WANTED—A wife wanted by a divorced gentleman, 47 years old, a farmer, sound and vigorous, 5 feet 8½ inches tall, weight 158 pounds, dark complexion, absolutely alone, sober, never uses tobacco, of good family, strictly moral habits, possessing a will of iron and a flashy temper; a little woman for a wife, who is willing to try to make me happy and assist me in pulling in the dollars; she must be of good moral character and have a fair education; no chronic scrapper need answer this advertisement; I mean business to the right woman. CHARLES W. WHITE, Newark, Del., Route 3, Box 2.

WATERVILLE, Me., June 5.—The Bar Harbor express, one of the fastest trains on the Maine Central, was bumped while passing through the yard here yesterday. Fred Bogue of East Machias, Me., and C. E. Brown, a commercial traveller of Detroit, were injured by flying glass.

SPEEDY RELIEF FOR STIFFNESS Rheumatic Pains Sore Hands or Feet in

Minard's Liniment is the most effective, economical, and clean-to-use external application for rheumatism, neuralgia, pleurisy, stiff, twisted joints, sore, strained, or lame muscles, sore, aching feet, or hands, or any pain or ache, proof of which is found in the grateful letters of those who have used it. By absorption through the pores of the skin it at once removes the cause of pain by reducing inflammation, and soothing irritated nerves, thus giving the instant relief and permanent cure that has earned for this great External Remedy its title, "King of Pain."

CHINA MISSION ATTACKED; FEAR BIG MASSACRE

"White Fans" Mercilessly Beat Methodist Worker in Chao Tungfu.

FOREIGNERS ARE FLEEING

Special Cable to Boston American.

HONG KONG, June 5.—American and English missionaries are to-day flocking to this city from Swatow, Pakhoi and Chao Tungfu districts as a result of a threatened massacre of all foreigners by the Chinese "White Fans."

The safety of many Americans is imperilled.

At Chao Tungfu, Rev. S. Pollard, a Methodist mission worker, was attacked and mercilessly beaten. One of his lungs was pierced by a weapon. A general uprising of the "White Fans" is feared and foreigners are making their way to the coast and protected districts.

Chao Tungfu is a city in the northeast part of the province of Yunnan, China, with a population of about 70,000. The Bible Christian Home of Foreign Missionary Society, an English organization, has a station there which consists of four missionaries, men and women, native worker, an elementary school and a dispensary.

The China missionary list says that S. Pollard and his wife have been stationed there.

Mrs. M. E. Glufling conducts a select employment bureau at 469 Cambridge St., East Cambridge, Mass. She says: "My family physician advised me to take the Osmo-Chemic treatment for a Uterine Tumor and a Rupture which for 23 years had made my life miserable and which had resisted the best efforts of many of the foremost physicians. An operation was not to be thought of on account of the dangerous location of my trouble. I was told that I could not live six months in the condition I was in. MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE WILL USE WHIP ON RIVAL

Wealthy Mrs. Louis G. Meyer Issues Her Final Warning to Southern Beauty.

HUBBY IS ON PROBATION

NEW YORK, June 5.—Mrs. Louise G. Meyer, whose millionaire husband and her rival, Mrs. Kathryn Keogh Conrad Fuller Harkness, a Southern beauty, were injured in an automobile accident in New York, and who forced her spouse to sign an agreement on his sick bed to be good, declares to-day that she is to have revenge clear and sweet on Mrs. Harkness and with the woman he is infatuated with.

"I shall continue to love my husband," said Mrs. Meyer, "but shall punish my rival!"

The novel contract Mrs. Meyer, the faithful wife, forced her husband to sign is still the talk of the city. Meyer and the Harkness woman were victims of an auto accident in Bronxville, which resulted in the disclosures that brought Mrs. Meyer's outspoken declaration for vengeance. Mrs. Harkness, the rival, had her hip fractured and is in a critical condition. Meyer also sustained broken bones, and is confined to his bed under the constant care of physicians.

May Horsewhip Rival.

Already the wife has taken steps to bring her rival before the bar of justice. Her attorney, Henry Merchant, said to-day that Mrs. Meyer intends to publicly horsewhip Mrs. Harkness if the beautiful rival does not stop "enticing" Meyer.

"Mrs. Meyer proposes to pursue that woman until she has inflicted on her punishment commensurate with her offences. There will be no letup. The first action will be a civil suit against her for the alienation of Mr. Meyer's affections. That will serve the purpose of publicity. Other actions will grow out of that. There is no truth in the story that Mrs. Meyer intends to sue for a divorce."

"Just Wait!" Says Rival.

"Just as soon as Mrs. Harkness is well enough," said a member of her parents' household, at No. 204 West Seventy-ninth street, "her side of the story will be told. It will put a different light upon matters. And in the meantime her father, Colonel Keogh, will have something to say about the charge that Mrs. Harkness was going about with Mr. Meyer with the full knowledge and consent of her parents.

"Mrs. Meyer had better be very careful what she says. There is going to be a reckoning soon, and every charge that has been made against Mrs. Harkness will be taken into account. Colonel Keogh may have something to say to-morrow, and then Mrs. Meyer had better look out."

This is regarded as an indication of the prospect in store for Colonel Keogh.

Meyer's Reform Contract.

The contract that Meyer signed at the request of his wife was a novel one. Before the three months' of probation on which his wife put him had expired, Mrs. Meyer's lawyer, Henry D. Merchant, of No. 21 Park Row, with a detective and Mrs. Meyer's son, Stephen Fullerton, forced an entrance into a room and yooung Mr. Fullerton started in to thrash his stepfather. This incident did not become public, but a hairpulling match between Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Harkness did. Mrs. Meyer was preparing to go ahead with her divorce when her husband and Mrs. Harkness were injured in the automobile wreck last week, and again Mrs. Meyer relented.

Suppressed Divorce Suit.

Mrs. Meyer was Ada E. Bull, and is the sister of a New York physician. Her first husband, Edward Fullerton, died several years before she married Meyer, in 1889. Five years ago she began suit for divorce, naming an uptown modiste as co-respondent, and alleging that Meyer had lived with her as husband and wife in many hotels and apartments. The suit was suppressed.

Mrs. Harkness was Kathryn Keogh, of Charlottesville, N. C. After the death of her first husband, Conrad, she came to New York and married Louis Fuller, whom she divorced. Later she married William Harkness, who, Mrs. Meyer's lawyers say, is still her husband.

"Husband Must be Crazy."

Mrs. Meyer in an interview declared that she would not stop hounding the woman who she asserts stole her husband's love.

"Mr. Meyer and I have been married for nineteen years," she said, "but we always lived happily until he met this woman. I pray he will see the error of his ways if he lives.

"He loves me, and only two or three days before this last trouble he wrote me a loving letter, saying he realized he must be crazy to care for that other woman.

Rival Was Poetic.

"The owner of the automobile, William A. Feigelstock, who is a millionaire and lives in West End avenue, will not be able to walk again for eight or ten weeks, I am told, owing to the injuries to his legs."

In addition to the poetic letters which were found in Mrs. Kathryn Fuller Harkness's trunk, there was a poem addressed to "My Derling" in Mrs. Harkness's writing:

THE DEVIL LAUGHS.
It pretends as you and I,
The devil laughs
Not by halfs;
It cares not to go in
Only in whole,
Just for a soul.
Where sin is not
The devil shares
In this world's snares.
Are you for me or not?

"That is complicated enough for a modern magazine," commented Mrs. Meyer.

STEVENS FOR N. P. R. HEAD

ST. PAUL, June 5.—The report that John F. Stevens is to come to this city again as president of the Northern Pacific Railway is persistent.

A telegram was received from Washington to-day saying the presidency of the Northern Pacific had been offered to Mr. Stevens by J. J. Hill himself.

Although Mr. Hill denies any knowledge of this, he refused to discuss the question and would give no direct negative answer.

NAPHTHA BLOWS UP WRECKED TRAIN

ERIE, Pa., June 5.—A westbound freight on the Nickel Plate was wrecked early today at Harbor Creek, while going at a forty-mile clip. A broken brake beam caused a car to leave the track. The wreck immediately caught fire. Several cars were loaded with naphtha, and this exploded with loud detonations. No fatalities oc-

"I'VE QUIT THE STAGE TO MAKE PIES"--EDNA MAY

Off on a Motor Honeymoon of Europe, Star Laughs Farewell at Footlights.

By Viola Rodgers.

LONDON, June 5.—"I intend to become strictly domestic," laughed Edna May Lewisohn, just after her wedding yesterday. "I am going to learn to make the sort of pies 'that mother makes,' and all that sort of thing. I'm not a bad cook, even now, but I intend to learn a lot more about pots and pans and stoves and cookies. I think it's a fine thing to be a real housewife.

"How funny it seems to be called Mrs. Lewisohn," she went on, with a little half-hysterical laugh. "I shall have to be introduced to myself. I hate to give up my little old name, but then it is well worth it, for I am tremendously happy."

"Talking about 'giving up,'" I said, "do you really intend to give up the stage?"

Never to Go Back to Stage.

"Oh, yes," replied Edna, "I never, never intend to go back to it. In the first place, Mr. Lewisohn won't let me; and in the second place, I don't want to."

"Don't you really, truly think you'll become restless for the footlights?" I persisted.

"No, indeed; I really shall not," replied the bride. "It seems such a pleasant thing to think that my life now will be my very own—no haughty stage manager, no draughty stage doors. It's positively lovely to think about it."

And Mrs. Lewisohn looked positively as though she meant it and as though she was enchanted at the prospect of domesticity.

"When are you going back to New York, Mrs. Lewisohn?" I asked.

"We wanted to visit New York at once," replied the bride, "but on second thought came to the conclusion that it would be better to wait until Summer is over before we go back there."

At 10 o'clock I saw Edna May married to Oscar Lewisohn, son of the late Leonard Lewisohn, of New York, in a shabby little registry office in the shadow of Windsor Castle.

The bride wore a simple but lovely dress of white, shimmering crepe de chine, with a bodice of lace embossed with silver, and a large picture hat of white chip straw, trimmed with white lilies. As a wrap she wore a lovely coat of Irish crochet lace.

Bridegroom Ill at Ease.

The bride appeared far less nervous than the bridegroom, who was distinctly ill at ease. In reply to the registrar's questions Mr. Lewisohn gave his age as twenty-two, while Edna confessed to being twenty-eight years old.

The wedding party, which numbered nine persons, drove over to Windsor from Lewisohn's place, Torwood, at Ascot, in two motor cars and passed almost unnoticed through the Windsor streets to the registry, where the superintendent registrar—happily named Lovegrove—was waiting.

In the auto with the bride were Mrs. Pettie, the bride's mother, and her sister, Jane. Mrs. Skerritt was in the second car with Edna's young sister, Marguerite, and Sidney Skerritt, who acted as best man.

The service was of the briefest and plainest known, and at its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Skerritt signed the register as witnesses and Mr. and Mrs. Lewisohn received their certificate of marriage.

After the marriage the party motored back to Torwood, where a wedding lunch was served to fifty guests and where quite a jolly little reception was held.

I saw the bride at the Torwood reception just before she and her young husband started in their automobile for a tour in France and had quite a pleasant little talk with her.

Mrs. Lewisohn received many presents, among them being a magnificent strand of large pearls, the gift of her husband.

FAMOUS OX SHOER DIES AT TAUNTON

TAUNTON, June 5.—Thomas McHugh, whose blacksmith shop has been a city landmark for many years, is dead at his home from abscess of the brain.

"McHugh's blacksmith shop" has been pointed out for more than a quarter of a century by travelers on the short line to Brockton. It was the only smithy in Taunton where oxen were shod, and a group of curious children were always at the door.

"COME HOME," PARENTS CALL TO ELOPERS

Forgiving Father of New Bedford Bride Offers Barrows Restaurant Business.

COUPLE IN PAWTUCKET

NEW BEDFORD, June 5.—Though the wealthy and socially prominent parents of young Arthur Barrows still refuse to welcome to their home the girl he secretly married after an automobile elopement May 25, the bride's parents have forgiven the runaway and wish to set the groom up in business.

The bride is the handsome daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jaspar C. Taylor, her father being proprietor of the New England House. To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, he said:

"If Clara and her husband will only come back to New Bedford, I will give them a restaurant which I own on Cove street. I wish you would print this in the AMERICAN, so that they may know that they are forgiven."

Mr. and Mrs. Barrows are now living at the Hotel Benedict in Pawtucket. After the elopement the groom, who is not yet twenty-one, brought his bride to his parents' home, and they remained a day and a half. His father, in a stormy interview, is said to have threatened to have the marriage annulled, owing to the son's youth. The son defied him, saying, "I love Clara, and I refuse to leave her."

He then left with his wife for Pawtucket and has not since communicated with his folks.

It is said that Mr. Barrows, who is one of the richest men in New Bedford, desired his son to marry Ellen Baker, a beautiful heiress of this city, with whom he had also kept company.

SAILS IN QUEST OF $1,000,000 IN ENGLAND

Tilton, N. H., Librarian Certain of Being Able to Prove His Claim as Heir.

MILFORD, June 5.—Jerome Prince, librarian in the Soldiers' Home, Tilton, N. H., will sail from Boston, June 19, for Liverpool, in search of $1,000,000 which he believes he has fallen heir to by the death of two uncles in Liverpool.

Mr. Prince was formerly a resident of Milford, but has not lived in Milford for many years. While in Milford this week, Mr. Prince informed some of his acquaintances that he is confident of getting the legacy as soon as he reaches the other side of the big pond.

Certain of Success.

For seven months Mr. Prince has been in correspondence with his counsel in Boston and Liverpool, regarding the reported windfall, and from the letters that he has in his possession, Mr. Prince says it is only a matter of a short time when the good old coin will be in his own hands. The only delay, according to Mr. Prince's statement, is obtaining a clear title of the money, and as soon as he arrives on the other shore he feels sure this title will be secured.

The $1,000,000 that is believed by Mr. Prince to be waiting for him is said to be deposited in the Liverpool savings bank.

To Lose No Time.

In the early part of January Mr. Prince received a letter from Attorney McCabe, Liverpool, which has caused him to believe that no time should be lost in looking up the title of the legacy said to be due him. The letter reads:

"The will of the Prince heirs is in the archives in safe preservation, in the Fourteenth Parish East Savings Bank, holding the sum of $285,000 left in trust for Jerome Prince, by his uncles, Benjamin Prince and Lyman Prince, of Liverpool, Eng.

"This claim will be called up in the court in Liverpool, Eng., in June, 1907, in which such heirs now living may be present and prove their title, of which you are notified. Most cordially yours, Sir William H. McCabe, Liverpool, Eng., counsel, January 17, 1907."

Only Three Heirs.

Mr. Prince says that the amount of money referred to in the letter is only the amount of cash deposited in the Liverpool bank fifty-eight years ago. He claims there is a legacy obtained from the interest on the $285,000 during its fifty-eight years in the bank.

The money, with interest deposited in the Liverpool savings bank, according to Mr. Prince's statement, is to be divided between three persons, of which Mr. Prince is one. Mrs. Helen Marsh and Mrs. Etta Simpson, Bradford, Vt., sisters of Timothy Prince, are the other two persons who are to share in the wealth.

HORNETS AND BULL CHASE GIRLS WALKING TO BOSTON

Barnard Graduates on Way to Boston Encounter All Sorts of Perils.

Beset by perils ranging in danger from angry steers to hornets, four young women, recent graduates of Barnard College, New York, are on their way to Boston from Chatham, N. Y. They are walking.

Frances Morton, Ada M. Smith, Josephine White and Edith L. Packard are the four wayfarers.

Advices received in Boston to-day from Pittsfield indicate that the quartet expects to sight Boston June 30. The young women were in Pittsfield last night.

A bull that chased Miss White wears a crimson suit, an army of hornets that stung Miss Packard and a farmer's wagon from which Miss Morton fell are a few of the moving accidents by flood and field that they have met already.

When the trip is over the young women will write about it for a magazine if they have sufficient strength left.

The girls left New York last Saturday morning, via the Harlem road for Chatham, twenty-five miles west of Pittsfield, at the foothills of the Berkshires. There they left the train for the 150-mile walk to Boston. Avoiding cities and hotels, they take the back roads and stay at farmhouses wherever night overtakes them.

Chased by Bull.

Over Lebanon mountain in Hancock County yesterday they were chased by a bull. They had climbed over a fence into a pasture to get some wild flowers. The bull, attracted by Miss White's scarlet jacket, rushed toward them and they had barely time to vault over a barbed wire fence. Miss White tore her skirt on the wire.

Miss Morton says:

"We are going to walk across Massachusetts. We find the farmers glad to see us. One old lady, Mrs. Jacob Dickinson, in Hancock, let us make fudge in her kitchen, and later on we played on her organ and sang college songs for the whole family. Then Mr. Dickinson, seventy-six years old, got out his fiddle and we had a cakewalk. The dear old lady Dickinson enjoyed it so much she invited us to come again."

With their little knapsacks thrown over their shoulders they were last seen sweeping around the Housatonic River bend toward Washington Mountain.

JOSEPHINE WHITE—Chased by a bull.

EDITH L. PACKARD—Stung by hornets.

FRANCES MORTON—Fell from a wagon.

ADA M. SMITH—Still to be heard from.

GOULD TRIES TO SHIELD WOMEN IN DIVORCE SUIT

Anxious to Protect Society Leaders, He Seeks to Quash Evidence.

A STORY OF PARSIMONY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Determined at any cost to shield the society women whom Mrs. Howard Gould has named in her suit for separation, Howard Gould, through his counsel, Delancy Nicoll, has obtained an order to show cause why three paragraphs in the complaint of his wife should not be stricken out.

The chief of these three paragraphs is that which charges that Howard Gould maintained relations with various women in such an open manner as to insult and degrade his wife.

The names of these women will be brought out in the course of the suit by testimony offered on proof of the charge, and it is to avoid this that Gould and his lawyer seek to have the paragraph stricken out.

Investigate Gould Plot.

As a result of a conference between Mrs. Howard Gould's attorney and Deputy Commissioner Hanson yesterday, the heads of the police department to-day began a rigid investigation of the Gould plot. This means that every feature of the Detective Bureau scandal is now certain to be told, and Howard Gould will have to admit or deny he paid money to former Inspector McLoughlin for spying on Mrs. Gould.

The assertions concerning Mr. Gould's alleged niggardliness came on top of the assertion that Mrs. Gould had illustrated how extravagant she was by purchasing $60,000 worth of jewels from Tiffany's at about the time she and her husband parted. An intimate woman friend of Mrs. Gould said:

No Christmas Gifts from Gould.

"Late in 1902 the Goulds were yachting on the Niagara, and among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. William A. Perry, a Miss Noble, of Baltimore, and a Mrs. Robinson. The Niagara put into Madeira Islands for the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Gould bought some presents for the guests and some for Mr. Gould. The guests also purchased Christmas gifts to be given among themselves and to the crew.

"On Christmas morning all the presents were handed around and, of course, every one expected Mr. Gould to go down to his room and produce a great many handsome things. There was disappointment when he did nothing of the sort. He apparently felt ashamed of himself and said he had forgotten the day, so he sat down and wrote on a slip of paper an order for ten shares of stock which he presented to Mrs. Gould. That was her Christmas gift.

Tore Up Stock Gift.

"Though there was none of the sentiment of the day about it, Mrs. Gould was rather pleased and she asked Mr. Gould if he would not put it away among her other papers in the yacht's safe. Only Mr. Gould had the combination. In time Mrs. Gould forgot about the ten shares of stock, but Mr. Gould did not.

"Some months later, when they had returned from the cruise, Mrs. Gould asked her husband for whatever papers of hers there was in the safe and as he knelt before the iron box he carefully examined each article he took out. Finally he produced a scrap of paper, and, after examining it, tore it up. Mrs. Gould asked him what the paper was, and he declared it was nothing but a useless scrap of paper. She took occasion to examine the pieces, however, and discovered that it was the order for ten shares of stock."

PLUCKY GIRL BEATS THUG

PORTLAND, Me., June 5.—Miss Lillian Harmon, daughter of George A. Harmon, No. 76 Pleasant avenue, Deering district, was held up in a lonely section last night, just after leaving an electric car at 11:30 o'clock. Miss Harmon is the assistant librarian at the Mechanics Library. As she turned the corner of the street, she was caught from behind and thrown to the ground. As she fell, she threw a book at her assailant, striking him in the face. This allowed her time to recover her footing and she ran toward her house. Her father, who heard her screams, gave chase, but the thug escaped.

Babies' Brightest Sayings Contest Is Now Open to You

Send in Your Babies' Sayings Now and Let Us All Enjoy These Young Yankeeisms

Is your baby the brightest baby in Boston?

Of course he is, you say. Then prove it. The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has issued a personal challenge to every individual fond parent in Boston to prove that his or her baby is brighter than any other baby in the city.

There's a chance for you. You're always telling what the baby says, aren't you? Oh, yes, you are. We all hear you on the cars, in the restaurant, at the matinee, in front of the bargain counter, at the club, over the backyard fence, everywhere, proud papas and doting mammas repeating the latest bit of baby wit and wisdom.

"Oh, I must tell you what the baby said," or "that reminds me of what my boy said." We hear it every hour in the day.

And the best of it all is we like to hear it.

We listen, then we laugh, then the story sticks in our memory and the first thing we know we find ourselves repeating it.

Here's a chance for you to tell "what baby said" to a grand good purpose.

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN wants to know the brightest thing baby ever said enough to pay handsomely for the knowledge.

So just jot down that last particularly wonderful thing your baby said and send it along.

There probably isn't a man or woman in Greater Boston who would refuse the gift of a $500 building lot, in the best and healthiest and most booming sections of Dorchester.

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is passing out such a gift, and if you have a bright baby you have a jolly good chance to win it.

The brightest baby in Boston gets that lot. Is your baby the brightest?

Boston is full of bright babies.

The BOSTON AMERICAN has already proved that. A contest of baby wisdom held two years ago swamped the office with letters and marvelously interested people, young and old, far and wide.

Here are some of the clever things the babies said then.

Can't your baby say something brighter? Of course he can. Well, prove it. The building lot is waiting for you.

LIKE A SUN SHOWER

My grandchild, aged three years, said his toothache was "like a sun shower, comes and goes. First it starts to wein (meaning rain) and then the sun comes out again."

QUITE DIFFERENT

Barbara's (aged four) papa was not always so careful in his choice of language as he might be, particularly when, for example, he hit his thumb with a hammer instead of the tack. A few weeks ago, on returning from Sunday school, she remarked:

"Mamma, I don't believe that Jesus Christ, they tell about in Sunday school, was the same man papa talks about."

IS IT PUMPING?

It was a partly cloudy day in June when Aunt Addie stepped to the window and said:

"Look, the sun is drawing water."

"Oh, Auntie," exclaimed her three-year-old niece, as she came running to the window, "is it pumping?"

STUTTERS AT IT

Edward, aged eight, is very proud of his sister, aged six, who can play a few notes and make a noise like most girls at the piano. He said to me one day: "Isn't sis a fine player? The only way I can tell it isn't you is that she stutters at it."

"Auntie."
No. 632 Third street, South Boston.

HIS FIRST COW

One day in the country my son Merle, aged four, saw a cow for the first time, and in describing it to me, said:

"I saw a cow and it had four legs, two on each side; a tail and two horns, and after a while it blew one of its horns."

A BIT MERCENARY

When my little sister Ethel was four years old she came from the kindergarten the first day and was asked by her mamma how she liked it. She said very indignantly:

"I'll not go over there any more. I made a nice chain an' the teacher didn't pay me. What you think, I work for nothing?"

I. E. SCHUMANN.
No. 125 Minden street, Roxbury.

GOD'S ADDRESS

My little boy, not five years old, awoke the other morning and asked:

"Mamma, where does God live?" I said, "In heaven, dear."

"Well, give me his street and number and what is his last name?"

MRS. MICHAEL TIERNEY.

MOST ASSUREDLY

Last Saturday my little cousin May, who is only three and one-half years old, had a little flatiron given her, so on Sunday morning she got up bright and early and got a handkerchief out of the drawer and began ironing it.

When her mother began reproving her for ironing on the Sabbath, she said: "Don't oo tink der dood Lord knows that my little iron been't hot?"

MRS. DELIA BUTTERFIELD.
No. 42 Lawrence street, Boston.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER

My little girl, four and one-half years old, hearing a neighbor remark that the big clap of thunder Monday night made her think the "Day of Judgment" had come, exclaimed: "The Day of Judgment could not come in the night, could it, papa?"

No. 34 Temple place, Boston.

GOING OUT TO PLAY

My little boy John is three years old. A few nights ago, when getting ready for bed, when his boots were taken off, there was a hole in the toe of his stocking. He said: "See, mamma, my toes are going out to play."

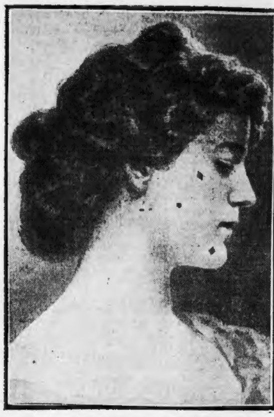
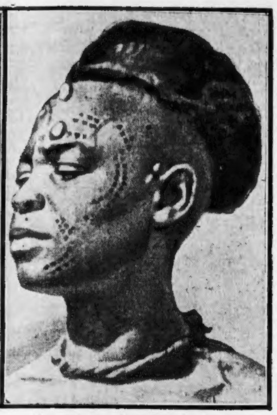
Is Magnificence in Dress But a Link Between CIVILIZED AND SAVAGE?



The little black patches of court plaster some ladies use to enhance the clearness of their complexion.



Decoration on a South Sea Islander's face, the barbaric original my lady fair copies.

By ARLETTA BURROUGHS—No. 2

THERE is every indication that woman, when she wishes to be particularly original and unique in the way of decorating herself in order to enhance her beauty, goes to barbaric tribes for her models. She would protest vehemently if she were told that she ever copied the style of the tattooed man to make herself pretty, but when she puts "patches" on her white skin in order to call attention to this very fairness by comparison she is copying precisely his mode of procedure.

Effect Is Barbaric

IN her case, however, there is always the possibility of eradicating these little "beauty spots" by the judicious use of soap and water, while in his case it is once tattooed always tattooed.

However, the effect is the same, and the hideous (to us) decorations which his fancy evolves are to him as artistic as are the dainty little squares and circles of jet black court plaster on the ivory whiteness of milady's cheek and chin, to her more cultivated imagination.

The late fashion of short sleeves in all kinds of gowns has developed the barbaric in the girl who wears bracelets, and in many cases the arms are loaded with them. I wonder that long ago some leader of fashion did not introduce anklets with the modern walking skirt, the lace stocking and the dainty footwear that does duty for shoes.

With the styles of hair dressing and ornamentation copied directly from our uncivilized fellow-beings, the ways of wearing neck, ear, finger and arm jewelry directly descended to us from the same source, and the very mutilation of the fair skin patterned from barbarism across the seas, there is room for the thought that we are not so far removed from barbarism after all.

Did Monkeys Wear Them?

SHALL we go further still and assert that the very craze for imitation which is said to possess woman has descended from simian ancestors even further removed than the savage from whom we have copied all the others.

Imitation being the most sincere flattery, can it be that there is in all this an unconscious effort to get "back to nature" on the part of the woman of to-day? There is room for thought, and if we compute the distance between so-called civilization and barbarism we may not find it as great as is generally supposed by the vain creatures that we are.

Can the Love That Is Dead Be Brought Back to Life Again?

By Dorothy Dix

THE question that is asked me oftener than any other one is, whether love that is dead can ever be revived. There is scarcely a day that does not bring me a letter from some girl complaining that her sweetheart has tired of her, and asking what she can do to rekindle his waning affections, or from a wife moaning that her husband has ceased to love her, and imploring to be told how to win him back again.

To me it seems that these letters strike almost the high note in tragedy, because any honest answer to them must be so hopeless.

There is no magic to compel love; no power to stay its flight. The wise and the foolish stand equally impotent and ignorant before the mystery of the human heart.

There is no formula for winning love; none for keeping it; none for finding it again after it is lost.

There is nothing so dead as a dead affection, and physical death is not so sad as the perishing of the ties that bound another to us. We still have those we have loved when they lie in the grave.

Nobody disputes their dear possession with us. Our hearts are not torn with the sight of their treachery and faithlessness. Our very souls are not tortured with the knowledge that the looks, the tenderness, the smiles, the kisses that were once ours are now given to another.

No such comfort have those who still have the body of love without its soul, who are doomed to sit by the altar at which they worship and see the flame of affection burn lower and lower and lower, and at last flicker and go out, and know not how to feed the sacred fire.

Happens Oftenest to Women

This experience is not peculiar to women. It belongs to men, also, but it happens oftener to women than men, and it hurts women's hearts more, because men are so peculiarly constituted, as a general thing, that they can change their affections as easily as they can their coats, and, if they can't get the woman they want, possess a cheerful philosophy that enables them to be just as fond of the woman they can get.

Unhappily, as a sex, women have the virtue of faithfulness, and when they once set their affections upon a man he becomes the one man in the world for them, and they break their foolish hearts in pining for him if he proves faithless.

Therefore we have the common and pathetic spectacle of the girl who clings to the lover when he has wearied of her, and neglects and insults her, and tries in every possible way to force her to release him from the bonds that have become fetters upon him. We see her anxiously waiting of an evening for the visits that come rarer and rarer.

We see her humble her pride to write him long, loving daily letters that are never answered. We see her dishonor her womanhood by haunting the places he works and calling him up by telephone, until she becomes the laughing stock of coarse wits.

Tired of Her, He Is Tired

And so seeing, we could weep at the uselessness of it all, for if a man is tired of a woman he is tired of her, and against that blank wall of fact every argument and persuasion and effort falls dead. He cannot help it. She cannot help it. Nor is it any-one's fault.

We cannot explain satiety, nor changing taste. We cannot tell why the thing that tempted us one moment revolts us the next. We only know that it is true.

It will seem cold comfort to tell the girl who is clinging to a man who is trying to disengage himself from her that the only thing to do is to let him go, but that is the best advice that anybody can give her. If anything will bring him back to her and revive his interest in her it will be a little spurt of independence on her part.

The women who hold men hold them on a pack thread that the man feels that he can break at any minute, and that he is scared to death for fear the woman is going to snap on her own accord.

Nothing gets on a man's nerve like the nagging of love—the ceaseless demand on a girl's part to know where he spent every hour he was away from her, whom he saw, what he did; her unreasoning jealousy over every casual attention and look at other girls; her constant bombardment with letters and telephone messages that are sticky with sentiment.

He simply gets sick, satiated, disgusted with love and the indiscreet maiden who gorges him upon it, and the wise move, the only move, that she can make with dignity to herself and any hope of good results from him is to voluntarily set him free.

Let him see that she can exist without him, and that she can get tired of him as well as he can of her. That will at least arouse his vanity and pique his self-conceit, and if his love is not dead beyond all resurrection it will galvanize it into new life. For it is one thing to discard and another to be discarded.

A Difficult Problem

The wife whose husband has grown weary of her has a more difficult problem. She cannot ruthlessly cut the marriage tie and give the man his liberty. Still, her best policy also is to let her husband have a free rein and a long rein. Nothing is to be gained by tears and reproaches and always throwing up to the recreant spouse his sacred duty.

Doubtless it is our duty to love the one to whom we are married and whom we swore so glibly at the altar to always love and cherish, but love is not a matter of duty or volition, or even of determination. Love is slain of a thousand things beyond our control—by growth, for one thing; by a man developing away from his wife; by enforced absence; by simple boredom; by things that the man cannot help in his taste and feelings, and that the woman cannot remedy in herself.

It is one of the terrible experiences of life when two people find themselves involved in a marriage that is nothing but bondage on the man's side, while the woman still loves, but there is no overt act that she can perform that will bring back the love that is dead.

She can only wait, and so strange is the curious bond of wedlock, so mystic is the tie, that the very fetters at which a man frets are still powerful enough to draw him back almost in spite of himself.

The very fact that a woman is his wife whether he loves her or not, gives her a prestige in his eyes, a certain power and influence over him that no other woman possesses.

So the woman who has the patience to simply wait for her own to return to her nearly always gets it back in the end.

And sometimes it is worth waiting and praying for, and sometimes not. But all that she can do is just to wait.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE" By Elizabeth Purcell

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner.

SAYING little to his stepmother, for whose insincere welcome he did not then feel very much in the mood, he devoted himself to the St. Bernard. The dog was, at least, affectionate and sincere; and affection and sincerity were qualities painfully lacking in the human atmosphere around the Heath home.

Meanwhile Adele had slipped out with her mistress's handkerchief, a dainty morsel of lace-trimmed cambric, scented with lilac. Mrs. Heath had left it in the drawing room.

"Thank you, Adele. You had better go back now. Aubrey is out here somewhere; and Gilbert Wynn is out here, too, walking with Pauline. The thought of it makes me nervous. What if he were to propose to her and she were to accept him? What a rage Nudd would be in! There would be no keeping him within bounds. And he's been a very ticklish customer to manage lately.

"If he were to lose all chance of marrying Pauline, I don't know what would happen. And if he is kept waiting for money again as he was until last week there'll be trouble from that quarter, too."

"Where did you get the money from to send him last week?" inquired Adele, in a lower tone. "You never told me."

More from Nudd

Mrs. Heath looked momentarily perturbed. "Oh, from Nudd, as usual!" she answered. "He hasn't altogether dried up as yet. But he soon will dry up if we don't look out; and then he'll be down on us like a cartload of bricks. I'm sure I never was so worried in my life before. It's a dreadful thing to be in straits like this. I don't know where to turn for money. Ah! Here's Aubrey coming back with Wynn and Pauline. Thank you for the handkerchief, Adele."

"I have some news for you, Catherine," said Aubrey, approaching her with something more like satisfaction on his sad face. "Gilbert and Pauline are betrothed."

Mrs. Heath was nothing if not courageous. She dissimulated the chill that ran down her backbone, and held out her hand to the supplanter of Mr. Nudd with as cordial a smile as if his triumph had not plunged her into financial and other difficulties that might prove well nigh insurmountable.

"I congratulate you, Mr. Wynn," she said, with all the graciousness she could command. "You are very fortunate. And Pauline is fortunate, too, to have awakened so ardent a devotion in one who has been the tried friend of her family since even before she was born.

Gilbert Wynn looked annoyed at this allusion to his ripe middle age. Pauline turned aside to her amazed brother.

"Are you sorry, Jack?" she asked, walking apart with him.

Jack had taken off his hat, and was running his fingers through the crisp, short waves of his light hair.

"I don't know what to think," he answered uncertainly. "I don't know what to make of it at all. I can't say I'm sorry exactly. Wynn's an awfully nice fellow in his way; and, although he isn't exactly a chicken, he's decidedly fascinating and distinguished and all that, you know. It goes, of course, without saying, that I'd a thousand times rather it were he than the other fellow; and yet——"

"What other fellow, Jack?" Pauline interrupted in some wonder.

"Why, that mongrel of a Nudd!" irately replied her young brother. "I hear that he's been hanging about here lately, actually with the idea of marrying you. It's like his confounded nerve to think of such a thing. Why, a good honest coal heaver would be worth a dozen of him, any day! I'd been told, too, that our stepmother was encouraging him, and that things had gone on pretty far; so it's a great relief to me, to begin with, only to find that he's out of the running. But Wynn's too old for you, much too old; and he ought to have known it. I can't blame him for falling in love with you; nobody that has any eyes could help doing that, but I can't quite understand how he got you to love him."

Without Love

"I do not love him," Pauline said simply. Her brother stared.

"Not love him!" he exclaimed under his breath. "Then what the deuce have you promised to marry him for?"

"Because father wishes it," she answered in an equally subdued tone, "and because for some reason that I do not understand and cannot even guess it appears to be necessary that I should marry either him or Mr. Nudd. Mother"—she hesitated as she spoke the reluctant word—"mother has been trying to force me to accept Mr. Nudd for weeks past. Father has supported me in refusing him, but only, as it seems to me, upon condition that I should marry Mr. Wynn. What is the reason of all this plotting, Jack? What is the meaning of it?"

"I don't know," the young man replied gloomily. "I only know that something is going wrong somewhere. I can't pry into it, lest my own affairs should be pried into; and my own affairs are not in a very flourishing condition just now."

She looked at him anxiously, and then, for the first time, noticed the traces of dissipation on his features. Instantly the shadow that always haunted her own young face deepened into positive sadness. She laid her hand on his sleeve.

The Gambler

"Have you been betting again, Jack, after you had promised me that you would not?"

"I couldn't help it, Pauline," he murmured. "When a fellow's in low water, and he's got reason to think a certain horse is likely to win a certain race, it takes more strength of mind than he can summon up to resist having a try. It's the same with gambling. If you've only got $5 in the world you feel you might as well get rid of it that way, with the chance of winning more, as spend it in the ordinary fashion. And then you lose, and then you owe money; and then—well, you try to drown the remembrance of it in wine."

"Jack! You—a gentleman!"

Her tone had keen reproach in it and grave rebuke. He stopped suddenly and faced her.

"Pauline, do you know anything about a certain $250 that came to me anonymously about ten days or a fortnight ago?"

She looked at him for a moment wonderingly. Then she slowly shook her head.

"Two hundred and fifty dollars!" she repeated. "Sent to you anonymously! No; I know nothing of it. Tell me the circumstances."

He reddened a little.

"Well, the facts are these: A few weeks ago Wyan made $3,000 by backing Pimpernel, so I thought to myself I'd do a little betting again. I lost, of course; I'm an unlucky fellow. What with that and one or two other little things I got myself pretty deeply into hot water, and I wrote and asked Harding to lend me $250."

Pauline started.

"Dr. Harding!"

"Oh, Jack!" A vivid blush crimsoned her cheeks. She drew slightly away from him in her revolted pride.

"Well, what is it? There's nothing to be ashamed of in borrowing from a friend, is there? I though he'd be only too glad to let me have the same amount again. But he wrote to me and said it was for my good that he shouldn't send it. Actually! I was just wondering what the deuce I should do—for it wasn't only ruin, but disgrace, too, that stared me in the face—when there came a letter inclosing five $50 notes with a few lines begging me to accept the money as a present.

Handy Things for Housewives to Know

TO make a pretty hatpin cushion, take an old coffee tin, remove lid and stuff tightly with wool or rags. Then cut out two rounds of pretty colored sateen (lined) for top and bottom. Place the sateen in position and tack with long stitches down tin from one to the other. After this put a piece of the material neatly round and make pretty muslin or lace cover in a similar way, with the addition of frills to go over top and bottom of sateen. Tie round with ribbon, top and bottom.

When your clothes lines get black and sooty, as they are sure to do, wind them around the elbow and hand, then tie a common twine around through the loop, shake them out, and lay on the washboard in a tub of hot suds; take the scrubbing brush and scrub it, brushing always downward.

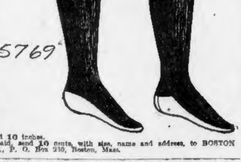
For washing handkerchiefs that have been used when one has had a bad cold make strong salty water in basin, place handkerchiefs in, and put on stove and gradually heat. Remove and rinse in clean water, and they can be put in with the rest of the laundry.

Never drape a mantel near a stove, and be careful that no portieres or curtains are so hung that they can blow against the stove. Many fires are due to carelessness in this.

The Boston American Pattern

PATTERN FOR RE-FOOTING STOCKINGS

No. 5,769—The usefulness of this pattern will be apparent at once to the economical woman, as it is well known that the soles of stockings wear out long before the leg portion, and have to be darned over and over again. This pattern gives two different soles, both equally good and shaped so that the seams will not cause any discomfort to the wearer, as darned stockings sometimes do. Expensive silk stockings may be made to do duty twice as long when re-footed in this way. The upper part of the old stocking will cut the soles for a pair.



No. 5,769—Sizes for 8, 9 and 10 inches.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents, with size, name and address, to BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

FROSTED APPLE PIE

ONE and one-half cups apple sauce either fresh or dried apples. Yolks of two eggs (reserving whites for frosting). Sweeten to taste, add a little cinnamon or nutmeg. Bake with one crust. Beat whites to a stiff froth, add three tablespoons of sugar, spread over pie and brown in a quick oven. Delicious.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

By the Professor

WRINKLES UNDER EYES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you pease tell me something that will remove little wrinkles from under the eyes?

A CO-ED.

IT IS probable that you study too much and strain the eyes, thus causing little wrinkles. If this is the case, correct this habit before you begin to work out the ones you already have. See if you need glasses, as the lack of them may cause you to squint your eyes up, causing the wrinkles. Take breathing exercises, eat simple foods, bathe often, drink much water, and the improved circulation will help the wrinkles to disappear. Massage by taking up tiny bits firmly between the thumb and forefinger and rolling them firmly but carefully. Start at each temple with the forefinger of each hand, moving toward the nose and high up on the bridge gently, then returning toward the temples with a firm, even sweep of the broad part of the finger, not removing the pressure until you reach the edge of the hair at the temples. Also dig deep all around the sockets of the eyes with a rotary motion and pressing hard against the bone without pressing upon the eyeball.

BRAN BAGS

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you kindly repeat a formula for bran bags which was published some time ago. I made some of them and found them excellent, but have forgotten the proportion of soap and have lost the formula.

MRS. J. L.

TO a pint of bran add a cup of odd bits of castile soap powdered fine, and mix with a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Put in bags just large enough to handle well and use as wash rags.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

MUCH PERPLEXED SWAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young man twenty-four years old, and, while I am not egotistical, I have reason to say that I am well accomplished and considered good-looking, also have a good position and am contemplating matrimony in the near future. Now, Miss Fairfax, seeing your kind advice given to other swains, I take advantage, and hope you will direct me in the most critical step of my life. I am interested in two young ladies and like them both—one is nineteen and the other twenty years. I cannot understand the former at times, as she is very unstable and whimsical and greets me very affectionately and then again she is very indifferent, but I must say she is very attractive and affable, and have good reason to say I am interested in her; while the latter is a very sensible girl, and treats me cordially on every occasion, as we all attend the same club.

J. F. M.

OF course you cannot love them equally—your heart must turn more to one than the other. The first girl sounds very attractive, but I think the second would be easier to live with. If you cannot make up your mind which you love best, then you do not really love either.

PRESENT OUT OF PLACE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I have been keeping steady company with a young man for about one year, and he said he cared a good deal for me. Last Sunday he called, and a girl cousin came to see me with her gentleman friend. My friend showed her quite a good deal of attention and gave her a present worth about $5. He knew I would have liked to have it.

Now, Miss Fairfax, do you think that is proper? It did hurt my feelings very much, and this is not the first time he made her a present.

L. B.

IF the young man is your friend, I think it was quite out of place for him to give a present you would care for to another girl. Should you see signs of his caring more for her than for you, be the first to give him up; it will save your pride and you will have lost nothing but a faithless sweetheart.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

RAIN or shine the wise shopper "makes hay" just the same during these days when the bargain harvest is at its height. In fact the very wise woman now chooses the rainy day for her shopping so that she may avoid the crowds and have practically first choice of the good things with which the counters are overflowing.

CHANDLER & CO. offer you fine French novelty voiles in all wool, all silk and all silk and wool in a beautiful variety of harmonizing colors, in stripes, checks and plaids, regular $2 to $4.50 per yard values, reduced to 95 cents and $1.35. These are the soft draping materials that make up so perfectly into evening and party gowns.

Bacon's Up-town Department Store will put on sale for one day ladies' 12½-cent fine quality vests, sleeveless and with wing sleeves for 9 cents, and in the ladies' neckwear department will offer their 25 cent Marie Antoinette detachable plaited fronts for 12½ cents.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON CO. have just secured an importer's sample line of beautiful Italian silk slumber rugs at less than half price. These are just the thing for canoes, hammocks and use on the piazza. They are of rich, beautiful coloring and very handy for Summer use. The prices are $1.50 rugs for 69c; $1.98 rugs, 98c; $2.98 rugs for $1.49 and $4.98 rugs for $2.49. These are found in the upholstery department, fourth floor.

R. H. STEARNS'S splendid dress goods offerings include the new chiffonlisse (an imported cotton voile) in plaids and fancy checks of most delicately beautiful shades. These are 50-cent values selling for 25 cents. These goods wash and launder perfectly.

MacDONNELL'S Tremont Temple Store offers as a special for Thursday any 98-cent black sateen petticoat in their store for 79 cents. You will appreciate this bargain all the more when you realize how big value they always have at this price. Please remember this off is good for Thursday only.

STARR'S great offering will be 1 sample suits of broadcloth, panama an rajah silk in Eton, pony and Prince Cha styles. A most remarkable lot of value Some of these suits originally sold f $37.50. You get your choice of them a to-morrow for $7.50.

BAILEY'S Boylston Street Rubbe Store will mark down misses' $5 and $7.5 raincoats to $3.50 and $5.50. These a in soft and attractive shades of gra and tan.

WOLF'S, "My Clothier," place o sale in their department on the stre floor women's very thin gauze lisle hos in tans and blacks for 25 cents. Thes have double heels, toes and soles and ar easily worth 39 cents.

HENRY SIEGEL CO. will put out for one day's selling their $1.50 white cotton petticoats for 98 cents. These have the deep umbrella flounce, trimmed with fine tucks and lace or Hamburg embroidery, both eyelet and blind. These will be found on the second floor.

R. H. WHITE CO. will put out for a "one-day flyer" the new "swagger" style handbag, made of goat-seal, with two strap handles, gilt frame, moire lined, with leather-lined pocketbook to match, a good value for 98 cents. To-morrow you can get one for 69 cents.

SHEPARD-NORWELL CO. offer an amazingly good bargain in belts, the six-inch white imported poplin kind, with handsome large pearl buckle, which sells for 50 cents. You can get it to-morrow for 19 cents, and you'd better get your Summer supply at this price.

JAMES A. HOUSTON CO. offer for one day's sale their $1, 10-inch cinnamon or white Teddy bears, with voice and felt feet, for 75 cents. It's a truly neglected youngster that does not have one of these treasures at so trifling a cost.

CONRAD'S will offer another lot of light-weight silk moreen petticoats, giving the customers who were disappointed last week an opportunity to secure a splendid $1.75 value for 98 cents.

200,000 Babies Starved to Make "Sorrow Throne" Safe for This Boy

PHOTOGRAPH NEVER BEFORE PUBLISHED IN THIS COUNTRY, SHOWING CZAREVITCH IN HIS FIRST PAIR OF TROUSERS.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 5.—Two hundred thousand dead babies is the crop of the famine in the provinces of Kazan, Samara, Viatka, Orenburg and Ufa, where 20,000,000 peasants are starving. This is the terrifying report received here to-day.

Infants are dying by thousands every day, their starved, heart-broken mothers beating their breasts in the despair of utter helplessness.

Physicians report that not one in every hundred infants born this past Winter has survived.

The men able to work have sold themselves into bondage for money to keep their dear ones in food and shelter.

The peasants, weakened by privation, have been swept away by thousands by the Spring floods, too weak to withstand this last buffet of the elements.

The dead lie unburied where they fall in the fields, the living too weak to dig graves for them to rest in.

Hundreds of bodies have been tossed into the raging streams to avoid the trouble of burying them.

In Samara there are 3,000,000 inhabitants. These include 450,000 children. Civil organizations for the relief of the starving in Samara and the other provinces named have worked nobly, with little encouragement or assistance from the gov.

Literally, this is all that millions of the starving children and their parents.

On paper the government planned to give eight pounds of flour per month to each man for ten months. This has been reduced to six pounds. Each pound of flour gives a pound of bread, theoretically. So the rations of those who have been accepting the government dole have actually amounted to six pounds of bread a month, or one-fifth of a pound a day.

Literally, this is all that the millions peasants have had to eat in the ten months of grim Winter that is ending. The results can be imagined. On top of the meager supply of bread it must not be overlooked that the peasants did not go into the Winter of privation physically strong and robust.

PROBE $30,000 TRAIN WRECK

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, June 5.—Officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to-day began a rigid investigation into the freight wreck that occurred on the Norwich division of the road at Southgate street, this city, when a switching engine collided with the East Hartford freight, injuring three trainmen seriously and destroying twenty-four heavily loaded freight cars, with a loss of over $30,000.

The injured:

Engineer Leon H. Eddy of East Hartford freight, badly burned about face and head, scalp wounds, may not live; City Hospital. Fireman Oscar Ahlgren, badly bruised and shaken up, will recover; City Hospital. Brakeman Charles Austin, injured about arms and legs, will recover; City Hospital. Superintendent J. A. Droge and Assistant Superintendent Hill are here investigating the collision.

JAPS DECLARE HAYASHI IS LAX

TOKIO, June 5.—A delegation of the progressive party waited on Foreign Minister Hayashi to-day and asked for an explanation of the government's apparent inaction and want of efficiency in the presence of grave diplomatic questions, both with China and the United States. The former is accused of deliberately obstructing the advancement of Japanese interests in Manchuria. The deputations also called attention to facts strongly indicative of racial feeling in San Francisco against the Japanese.

The nature of the reply was not made public.

20 PUPILS HAVE MEASLES.

AMESBURY, June 5.—An epidemic of measles has broken out here in the Agassiz School Building, which contains three classes of thirty pupils each. The first case was discovered Friday of last week and twenty cases have been reported.

BABY FALLS 2 STORIES; DYING

As the result of a thirty-foot tumble from the third-story window of his home at No. 20 Chelsea street, Charlestown, to-day, little two-year-old Daniel J. Gillen is dying.

The infant was playing near the window and leaned too far out over the sill. He struck on his head and was picked up unconscious.

RACE SUICIDE GROWS RAPIDLY IN BERLIN

BERLIN, June 5.—The Statistical Bureau draws attention to the decline in the birth rate in Berlin, which has been almost constant since 1876, when there were 240 births for every 1,000 married women. In 1906 the rate was only 10 per cent. Illegitimate births steadily increase.

MAN BLOWN UP BY EXPLOSION

PORTLAND, Me., June 5.—The entire front of the building at No. 222 Commercial street, occupied by Stokes & Folkins as the enameling department of their automobile manufacturing plant, was blown out yesterday by an explosion of liquids. Fred Delaney, who had just lighted an enameling stove, was blown into the street and his face badly burned.

SHOOTS COMPANION WITH 'UNLOADED' GUN

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 5.—Robert Keller, aged fourteen, is at the police station on account of shooting his friend, Jacob Kelmar, aged twenty, a storekeeper, to-day, while examining what they thought was an unloaded revolver. Kelmar is at St. Francis Hospital, and may die.

Two Styles of Binding Now Exhausted

LAST DAY!

Our Great "Century" Distribution Ends at 5:30 P. M. Tomorrow

Tomorrow marks the close of one of the most notable literary and educational opportunities ever offered to the New England public. We were proud to be identified with it since we knew it meant so much to library-builders in Boston and neighboring communities. We refer to the great "Century" distribution just now closing, and which has resulted in placing in so many of our homes the matchless

Century Dictionary & Cyclopedia & Atlas

10 Massive Volumes; 310 Maps; 8,000 Illustrations; 150,000 Encyclopedic Subjects; 200,000 Geographical Entries; 300,000 Quotations; 500,000 Encyclopedic Dictionary Definitions. Size of Volumes, 12x9x2½ inches; Weight 75 pounds.

The opportunity to secure this really great work at such little cost and on such convenient terms was alone made possible through the enterprise of the well-known COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, which obtained exclusive control of the entire edition for 1907 of the work, in order to offer it as a supreme inducement to secure a large number of desirable new subscribers. THE COSMOPOLITAN knew that to make the offer attractive and popular the price had to be reduced so as to bring the work within easy reach of all. This was done chiefly by cutting off all the big commissions paid to book canvassers selling THE CENTURY. Then THE COSMOPOLITAN sacrificed all present profit for itself, resting content with the increased circulation sure to follow—an increase which would naturally command higher advertising rates. And so the price was scaled down to the lowest notch, making it possible to offer

The $80-CENTURY for Only $39 Including THE COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE for 2 Full Years.

And Note These Easy Terms

$1 Secures the Complete 10-Volume Set; $2 Monthly for the Balance, or, if You Prefer, a 5% Discount for Cash.

Although the edition to be thus distributed was large for the whole country, the number of sets allotted to Boston and New England was necessarily limited. We succeeded in arranging to have the distribution made through our Book Department, and we were gratified to have the matter placed in our hands. Our confidence has been more than justified. The sets have gone even faster than we thought at all possible. Two styles of binding are entirely exhausted; only a few sets in the other styles remain, and we must therefore announce the close of the distribution, which means that

"Seeing Is Believing"

Some people may be sceptical about this really remarkable offer. It may seem "too good to be true." It is good and it is true. Although the price is so low the value is all there. Every set is of the latest revised, enlarged and improved edition, fully guaranteed by THE CENTURY CO. and THE COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE and fully endorsed by R. H. WHITE CO.—a pretty strong combination. But come and see for yourself. Inspect the volumes carefully. Compare them critically with any or all former editions and you cannot fail to be absolutely convinced. "Seeing is believing."

No More Applications Will Be Received After 5:30 O'Clock Tomorrow Afternoon

We take it for granted you know THE CENTURY and have seen this superb Edition for 1907. If then you are hesitating or delaying for any reason, we say very frankly and plainly: you must act NOW. The distribution closes Thursday afternoon at 5:30, ABSOLUTELY. Those who cannot conveniently call may still order by mail, sending the initial dollar; if too late their remittances will be refunded. Telephone orders may be sent up to the last minute, but none will be accepted after the store closes.

LID CLAPPED ON PARKS BY SUNDAY BILL

Cuts Out Shows in Every City, Allows Sacred and Patriotic Concerts.

The fate of the Sunday bill adopted yesterday by the House, shutting out the Sunday show from every city in the Commonwealth and clapping the lid down hard on Revere, Nantasket and other pleasure resorts, now rests with the Senate, where a fight will be made by Senator Allan G. Buttrick of Worcester, chairman of the recess committee on Sunday law, to have the liberal Sunday bill, defeated in the House a few days ago and which allows the licensing of Sunday shows by the local authorities and cuts out all of the law under which Sunday shows are given by religious and charitable organizations, adopted.

Under the provisions of the drastic amendment, adopted yesterday, after a vigorous fight by Representative Robert Luce of Somerville, by a vote of 103 to 91, all entertainments are barred except lectures and sacred and patriotic concerts. It allows the sale of Kosher meat till 9 a. m. It does not allow work on yachts. It allows newsdealers to sell ice cream, soda and cigars. It allows fishing in salt water and forbids fishing in fresh.

The Bennett amendment to allow labor unions or fraternal organizations to parade on Sunday with music at funerals was rejected.

That the sentiment of the House was not in favor of the Luce amendment is shown by the vote of the members standing, which resulted in the defeat of the Luce amendment by a vote of 65 to 75. When it came to going on record a number of men voted in favor of the Luce amendment who had voted against it when the standing vote was taken.

The fight yesterday leaves the Sunday law question about where it was last year when the House passed a similar bill and the Senate proceeded to kill it.

DISSENSION LEADS PASTOR TO RESIGN

As a result of differences among the officers of the First Presbyterian Church in Brookline, Rev. John A. Sinclair, who for the last six years has been the pastor, has tendered his resignation.

The trouble is said to have grown out of the annual meeting of the church society on last Wednesday night, when Ellis Oliver and Henry C. Bell, both of whom had served on the board of elders for some years, were defeated for a re-election.

9 BLIND GIRLS GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Nine blind graduates from the Perkins Institution for the Blind held commencement exercises in Tremont Temple yesterday and received their diplomas. Demonstrations of their ability in many branches were made.

DUKE TO DON OVERALLS AS CAR SHOP LABORER

Manchester Coming from Britain to Learn Railroading in Papa Zimmerman's Grimy Plants.

Special to the Boston American.

DETROIT, Mich., June 5.—The Duke of Manchester is coming to Detroit to work in the railroad shops controlled by his father-in-law, Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati. It is not because the Duke needs the ready money that he will resort to this manual labor, but because he is anxious to get knowledge of the railroad business from the construction of engines and coaches up.

Maybe the Duke contemplates stepping into his father-in-law's shoes when that gentleman gets too old for business.

The announcement that he will become one of the laborers in the railroad shops was made by Mr. Zimmerman, who said the Duke was anxious to learn the railroad business in America, so that he would be better qualified to discuss that particular business in the House of Lords.

HOLD GREEK LADS AS PADRONE DUPES

Ten Greek boys who came on the steamship Romanic have been detained by the immigration officials here in the belief that they are padrone boys. They claim to be going to Pueblo, Col., but have no railroad tickets. It is thought that they may have been brought here to work in bootblacking establishments.

FORMER SENATOR CLOSE TO DEATH

BRIDGTON, Me., June 5.—Hon. Winburn M. Staples and his nephew, Ernest Stevens, narrowly escaped death yesterday, when their horse bolted and threw both out. They struck a stone fence but will recover. Mr. Staples is a former State Senator.

TIRED AND SICK YET MUST WORK

"Man may work from sun to sun but woman's work is never done."

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo and often suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spirits are depressed, the head and back aches, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless heeded, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

MRS. AUG. LYON

keeps the feminine organism in a strong and healthy condition. It cures Inflammation, Ulceration, displacements, and organic troubles. In preparing for child-birth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of aches and pains in the lower part of back and sides. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Another hot old game is promised this afternoon when the Boston and Detroit teams get together for the second round of the series. The Tigers have discovered that the Pilgrims are not such easy meat after all. All the locals have needed all along is a little batting, and yesterday they showed that there are a few safe ones slumbering in their swat-sticks.

The Tigers are the noisiest crew that have come to these shores for many a day. They talk on the field and yell on the bench and shriek on the coaching lines. Hugh Jennings is responsible for the vociferous methods of the gang. He alone is worth the price of admission. He tears up all the grass in the neighborhood, he yells "Yah! Yah!" whenever the opposing pitcher serves a bad ball and he whistles with his fingers whenever one of his men gets on first base. He infuses a great amount of enthusiasm among his men, and they keep on the jump all the time.

Bostons Enthuse, Too.

Jennings was so effervescent yesterday that he got the Bostons imbued with the "get there" spirit. The result was they came up in the eighth and knocked the cover off the ball, sending in four runs on as many singles and a base on balls.

Things looked rosy for the locals at the start, and they chalked up three runs in quick order. With Tannehill in the box the Tigers were shut out for five innings, but they broke up the goose eggs in the sixth, at the same time sending the Southpaw to the stable. Five runs on two passes and three hits, including a couple of two-baggers did the business.

Then Oberlin came in and pitched great ball for two sessions and would have finished the game, except it was necessary for Manager Unglaub to send in Barrett in the eighth to keep up the batting rally. Jimmy did it all right, spanking a single over second base and sending in the second run of the four scored that inning. Then came some more hits and the game was won. Young Pruett twirled the ninth inning, and handled himself like a veteran at an exciting period.

Great Game to Win.

It was a great game for the Bostons to win, but it proves that they must keep on the go all the time, as no team in the league can take liberties with the Tigers.

Unglaub's men got in fourteen hits for a total of sixteen bases, and that is good enough. Seven of the safeties were bunched and they did the work to perfection.

Glaze may go in the box for the locals to-day, while Wild Bill Donovan is expected to serve his best for the Detroits.

Mullen worked a good deal faster than usual during the first part of the game, but after the Tigers scored those five runs he became as deliberate as cold molasses. He was slow while the Bostons were pummelling his delivery in the eighth also, but it did no good, as Unglaub's men were out for business.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Schafer pulled in a couple of Texas Leaguers in right field.

Boston showed some good base running in the first and the Tigers were mighty fast in the sixth.

Rossman had only one put out at first base, which is a remarkable thing for a ball game.

Archer caught a star game. He had eleven put outs and four assists. The catch of a foul fly on the edge of the fifty-cent pavilion was his best performance.

Umpire Evans put Armbruster off the bench for fresh remarks on his ability as an umpire.

Schafer tried hard to rattle Pruett in the ninth, but the youngster handled himself like Uncle Cy in a pinch.

Mullen struck out four men in succession.

Parent received a nasty clip on the back of his rght hand by a pitched ball.

BAY STATE A. A. WILL HAVE THREE DAYS' OUTING

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The touring committee of the Bay State Automobile Association has arranged for the annual Spring outing of the club to be held on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, June 15, 16 and 17. The holiday coming as it does on a Monday permits of a three-day outing, which fact the committee has taken advantage of and arranged for a tour, extending from Saturday over Sunday, until the holiday. The place selected is the Colonial Armson, Eastern Point in Gloucester harbor, a thoroughly up-to-date hostelry, excellent in its appointments and containing tennis courts, golf links, baseball diamond, etc., which will permit of the members and their friends enjoying themselves in divers way. The run to Gloucester can be taken at the close of business Saturday noon, the distance being so short as to permit of the arrival of the party at the place of destination in season to permit of the playing or witnessing of the annual ball game, between the married men and those who ought to be married. William Gray will unquestionably captain the former, while the single aggregation will find a suitable champion. Saturday evening a dance will be held in the ballroom of the hotel. Sunday it is possible that a run around Cape Ann will be enjoyed, while Monday morning there will be certain other features which will appeal to the members and their friends.

This outing, which will be the first of the season, should prove decidedly enjoyable, and it is believed that the members will endeavor on this trip as they have done in previous years to make it a family party, where not the members alone but also the members of their individual families will become, for the time being, part and parcel of the great automobile association. The committee which consists of J. C. Kerrison, Harry Fosdick and Colonel Horace G. Kemp, will do everything in its power to make the outing one long to be remembered.

Frequently an engine may run unsteadily or with more vibration than it should. This is usually caused through the ignition point of all cylinders not being timed to the same position in each cylinder. This may be due to lack of adjustment in the tremblers of the coil. The best way to time tremblers on a multi-cylinder coil is to hold all down but one and run the engine on the cylinder to which the particular section of coil is connected. Then let up one of the other tremblers and press down the one which has previously worked. By carrying this operation through the whole series of tremblers it will be noticed how ignition varies by the speed at which the engine runs. Adjustment of the tremblers to make the engine run at equal speed on each cylinder separately usually gives the best running. Another thing which would upset correct running on all the cylinders is uneven wearing of the contact maker wiping surfaces. In such case the only thing to do is to renew the defective part.

Burton Parker of the Fisk Rubber Company, recently in this city on a brief visit, reports that the Fisk company has succeeded in securing the services of a man from each of the great foreign tire factories, and also from each of the big American concerns, and will thus use the experience of all makers in the manufacture of the Fisk tires. In addition to this comes the news that the Fisk experts have discovered a new process for the curing of rubber, whereby it will have toughness superior to most tires and better wearing qualities. The Fisk company was one of the first to advise the use of detachable rims and the demand upon the company for their rims has been enormous.

CRIMSON WILL PLAY BROWN

BATTING ORDER.

HARVARD.	BROWN.
McCall, 2b.	Dickenson, 2b.
Briggs, 1b.	Jones, s. s.
Currier, c.	Paine, c.
Dexter, l. f.	Nourse, l. f.
Simons, s. s.	Raymond, r. f.
Harvey, c. f.	Hamilton, 3b.
Dana, r. f.	Elrod, 1b.
Pritchett, 3b.	Denney, c. f.
Hartford, p.	Tift, p.

Harvard crosses bats with Brown for the second time this Spring on Soldiers Field this afternoon at 3:30. Last week at Providence Brown defeated Harvard, 1 to 0. Harvard to-day will be crippled by the loss of Leonard at third, his sprained tendon still keeping him out of the game. Pritchett, who is very weak at the bat, will go in for him. Captain Dexter is down again with tonsilitis, and was unable to practice yesterday, although there is a possibility that he may be able to play to-day. Brennan or Hartford will pitch for Harvard, and Tift for Brown.

DARTMOUTH NINE WINS.

HANOVER, N. H., June 5—Dartmouth shut out Alabama yesterday at the oval by the score of 5 to 0 in an interesting game. Haselton pitched finely for Dartmouth, and was given excellent support. The visitors were a little under the weather, having come straight from Alabama without a stop. Dartmouth scored three in the fourth on a base on balls to Norton, who stole second, and scored on Glaze's hit.

FAST BOSTON TROTTER DEAD

Altona S. (2:19¾), by Stirling, is dead. She was the trotting mare J. F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, bought after her winning race at Brockton Fair last October, and later in the month won a race at Albany for her new owner, getting the record now standing to her credit.

Last season she was started eleven times over half-mile tracks, and Mr. Fitzgerald had every reason to expect that she would head many a race summary this year, thus making her death a heavy loss to him.

John F. Robie, who took the Fitzgerald string of campaigners, including Miss Ormond (2:10¾), Baron Patch (2:18¼) and Charmion (trial 2:08) to the Brockton track to prepare for racing a few weeks ago, has severed his connection with the stable and has opened a public training stable there, having at present four head, among the number being the pacers Myra E. (2:28¼) and Nancy Knowlton.

Jack Leonard takes the position to train the Fitzgerald horses, and intends working them along easily till time to take them to the races next month.

THREE TIGERS WHO ARE A TOWER OF STRENGTH TO TEAM

Hughey Jennings would not part with this pet trio and any team in the big leagues is ready to take any one of them off the Tiger manager's hands. "Germany" Schaefer, the good-natured Dutchman, is one of the popular players on the diamond and covers lots of ground around the second bag.

JONES, LEFT FIELD. SCHAEFFER, SECOND BASE. O'LEARY, SHORT STOP.

DISPUTE OVER THE WELSHMAN-CHECKERS RACE

New developments have come about in the match race between Checkers, 2:18¼, owned by Solly Wolfson, and Welshman, 2.18¼, the property of Walter J. Bates, that may interfere with deciding the event, and in any case is very liable to cause a lively dispute between the principals before the matter can be straightened out.

About two months ago the match was made for $100 a side, and a partial deposit of the amount put up in George Riley's hands, he being the stakeholder. Checkers is a pacer, while Welshman has always raced on a trot. The match was to be half-mile heats.

Since performing in the matinee at Franklin Field speedway two Saturdays ago when he finished third to Altro L. and La Gazelle, "Happy Jack" Trout concluded that Welshman is the making of a fast pacer; consequently he has shifted him to that way of going. The wisdom of so doing was manifest immediately, as right off the reel he stepped a workout mile in 2:18 with great ease, and the last half of the mile was so fast it has been kept strictly on the quiet.

Now arises the question whether Welshman is eligible to go on a pace in the match in place of trotting.

The stakeholder says that the match was made to take place on any date previous to, or on June 17, Mr. Bates to name the date ten days before the race if wanting it decided before June 17, and that it was understood Welshman would certainly perform trotting.

Fred H. Bellows, who is interested with Mr. Wolfson in the Checkers side of the match, is outspoken that Welshman must trot, otherwise Mr. Bates forfeits his money posted, and that what he says in this respect goes at every stage of the game.

Mr. Bates is keeping mum on the proposition, but the whole affair has aroused a world of interest in the neighborhood of Boylston street as to what the final outcome will be.

YOUNG ERNE TO FIGHT SUMMERS

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Young Erne of this city will be the second American to try out Johnny Summers of England, who recently fought such a sensational bout in this city with Tommy Murphy of New York. Erne and Summers have been matched to box here on June 19, the day the New York Aldermen will play the Philadelphia Councilmen a baseball game in this city. The fighters will weigh in at 130 pounds at 6 o'clock on the day of the bout.

YALE CREW WILL LOSE GRAHAM, STAR OARSMAN

NEW HAVEN, June 5.—A big surprise in rowing circles was sprung here to-day when it was announced that Harvey Graham, one of the three veteran oarsmen of the Yale varsity this year, would not be allowed to go to New London with the crew to-morrow, and was out of Yale boating for this season at least.

Graham, who has been back at his old seat at No. 2 for several weeks, where he was replaced a couple of months ago by Griswold, was pulled out of the squad by faculty decree, he being behind in his studies. Early in the season Graham was found to be behind in his college work, and Coach Kennedy and Captain Ide tried out Griswold at No. 2. On the eve of leaving for Philadelphia Griswold was taken ill, and it was thought that he was out of the boat for the season. When it became known that Graham was uncertain in his scholarship, Captain Ide and Coach Kennedy tried out Mayer in the varsity shell at No. 2. Griswold, however, has considerably improved and to-night took the final practice with the oarsmen in the harbor. He will go to New London as a member of the four-oared, and Mayer and Griswold will fight it out on the Thames for the vacant seat in the varsity shell.

The varsity squad that will leave to-day by special train for Gales Ferry will number seventeen men, fifteen oarsmen and two coxswains. The freshman squad consists of sixteen men, two more than usual. Two of the men will return to New Haven on Saturday after the coaches have had a chance to pick the crew definitely. The Yale crews took their final practice on the harbor here to-day. The varsity eight rowed two miles and a short sprint occurred between the two four-oared crews with the following crew bein successful.

Stroke, Robbins; 3, Babcock; 2, Griswold; bow, Rockwell.

The two freshman crews had a spirted race, but the distance was less than two miles.

The men will get to Gales Ferry tomorrow in time for a row early in the evening.

The Yale crew this year is conceded to be one of the smoothest rowing crews that has been seen here for several seasons, the men forming what is known among the officials as a rowing unit, so to speak, but there is a lack both of strength and experience. The men will row on the day of the race averaging only about 168 pounds, while all the fast crews that Yale has turned out in years past have been up to or above an average of 172. Coach Kennedy, when asked to-day as to the outlook for Yale, said:

"The race this year will be another race like last year; that is, a hard-ought one only. I hope in this instance that Yale will come in first at the finish. It will be, however, a strenuous fight on both sides, and the public will get a good race whichever side gets the honor."

The men who will go to New London include:

University eight—Boulton, '07, stroke; Ide, '08, 7; Howe, '09, 6; Taft, '07, 5; Homan, '07, 4; Rice, '09, 3; Mayer '08, 2; Auchincloss, '08, bow; D. Barkalow, '07, coxswain.

University four—Robbins, '06, stroke; Babcock, '07 L. S., 3; Griswold, '08, 2; Rockwell, '07 S., bow; Holmes, '09, coxswain.

Substitutes—Dunkle, '08; Godley, '08; Peyton, '08 S.

Freshman squad—Austin, '10; Mills, '09 S.; Brainard, '10; Brown, '10; Hyde, '10; Roberts, '10; Hoyt, '10; Coates, '10; Buist, '10; Morse, '10; Hunt, '09 S.; Hunsiker, '09 S.; Wodell, '10; Smith, '09 S.; Wallis, '10; Stern, '10.

JOHNSONS GET TENNIS TITLE

Charles Johnson and Harry Johnson are the new Massachusetts doubles lawn tennis champions, the title coming to them yesterday, when they, as the only survivors of the thirty-three teams which began the tournament, defeated Edgar Leonard and Irving Wright in a hard five-set match at the Brae-Burn Country Club. The sets went 6—4, 3—6, 6—2, 2—6, 8—6.

JEFF TO OPEN THIRST KILLER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 5.—James J. Jeffries, retired, undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, is to go into the saloon business. Last night Jeffries and J. C. Kipper, of Los Angeles, purchased the Tannhauser saloon.

According to report this new thirst emporium will be the classiest in the West and money will be spent with both hands in order to fit it up as one of the show places of the city.

PITTSBURG, June 5.—Ready to take a little revenge out of the Pirates for getting bumped so hard by the Smoketown bunch in their own city, Tenney's Doves are looking forward to the first clash to-day, and the playing hour can't come too soon for them.

The Pirates, after a most disastrous trip to Chicago, where their championship aspirations were given a severe shock, intend to make up on the Hub bunch, and are decidedly in a walloping mood.

But perhaps the old Pirate discards bearing the insignia of Beantown will not play the top ball. The fans expect to see a lot of fun when the teams get into action, and the home crowd has some strong sympathies for the visitors with the favorites they used to cheer for in the line-up.

The fact that Captain Tenney announced that Pat Flaherty would go on the slab was the signal for all Carnegie to get to the grounds early. The dark-haired southpaw got along nicely from his spiking received on the holiday and wanted nothing better than to open the series and show what a poor judge of real ball players the Pittsburg managers were when they let him go.

PROVIDENCE, June 5.—The Grays will try to trim the Rochesters again to-day. The locals put up a good brand of ball yesterday, and the fans are hoping that Duffy's men have struck their gait at last. Mack's great work in the box yesterday is the talk of the town.

BADGER FOUR IS DISBANDED

MADISON, Wis., June 5.—Coach Ten Eyck has disbanded the Wisconsin four-oared crew for the season. This means that Wisconsin will not be represented in that event at Poughkeepsie. The reason for the move is that the Wisconsin shell was so shattered by a collision with a buoy in Friday's race against Syracuse it's unfit for use. Instead of the four there will be taken to Poughkeepsie two freshmen and two varsity substitutes.

The necessity of disbanding the four is a great disappointment to the men in the small boat. They believe that had it not been for the accident they would have beaten the Easterners and they were anxious to settle the question June 26.

Coach Ten Eyck has been engaged by the faculty to do the coaching next year at a salary of $2,000.

SHAW CAPTAIN AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., June 5.—Arthur Shaw, '08, was unanimously elected captain of the Dartmouth track team this afternoon for next year. Shaw is the best hurdler that Dartmouth has ever had, having defeated the best hurdlers in the East and lost Saturday to Garrels only by inches. The election meets the approval of the undergraduate body, with whom he is very popular. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

SHOE MACHINE TRUST NOT TO DISCRIMINATE

—PRESIDENT WINSLOW

Head of Corporation Says Sales Will Be Allowed to Massachusetts Factories.

RAPS THE LEGISLATURE

The United Shoe Machinery Company, President Sidney W. Winslow said to-day, does not intend to cease furnishing new machinery to Massachusetts shoe manufacturers.

It will obey the law, declares President Winslow.

It was his first statement since sending out instructions to shoe machinery agents Monday not to take orders for new machines until further notice.

President Winslow says these instructions are operative until the company has received legal opinions of the effect of the Shoe Machinery bill on the United's present form of contract. The company must also prepare "new forms."

The Winslow statement appeared through Clarence W. Barron's Boston News Bureau, which seems to be the trust's authoritative channel. After a polite rap or two at the Legislature, and its joint judiciary committee, President Winslow's statement, in full, is as follows:

Raps Legislature.

"The contracts under which the company has done business since its organization have been believed by its directors to be for the best interests of the company, of the shoe manufacturers and dealers, of shoe orkers and of the pubilc.

"Their belief in the advantages secured by such contracts to all parties interested has not been shared by the Massachusetts Legislature, before the joint committee on the judiciary of which the company submitted its methods of leasing machines and as fully as the time permitted explained its contracts and its reasons for adopting them. The company also endeavored to make it clear to individuals in the Senate and House why it believed that there should be no legislation on the subject, in view of the great prosperity of the shoe industry in the State, and as the shoe manufacturers in the State had made no complaints about the company's plan of doing business which it was not willing to consider and which, if well founded, it was not anxious to remedy.

Will Continue Business.

"The United Shoe Machinery Company has never had any intention of ceasing to manufacture or supply shoe machinery in Massachusetts.

"It still believes that the recent act aimed at the company is not in the interest of the public, and the fact that the great majority of the men who are engaged in building up and managing the shoe factories in this State are also of the same opinion affords strong support to the position of the company.

"The company eroposes to continue its business in this State under such contracts as shall be acceptable to its customers and permitted by law. It will require some time to secure opinions of counsel as to the effect o fthe act upon the present forms of contract and to prepany can only assure its customers in this State that any delay in furnishing them additional machines will be as brief as possible."

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

WHERE BRAINY ECONOMICAL PEOPLE BUY ANY MAKE PIANO—RIGHT

A great many people are ignorant of the fact that the best possible opportunity to buy a piano at the lowest possible price is to get one at the Storage Salesrooms. Sometimes the finest pianos that are made go almost for a song. Some pianos of the best makes that have been used only slightly, and at that in the best homes, are sold for prices that seem impossibly low. New and second hand pianos are sold regardless of price.

Pianos go for prices much lower than an auction would bring. There is no one to bid at a piano storage salesrooms, the price is simply put on, first come, first served, and the careful, economical man or woman who wants to buy a piano economically, in fact more than economically, will watch the storage sales carefully.

The gilded piano stores with their costly appointments, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Bargains Beginning Monday, May 27

We would advise you to make up your mind to buy your Piano this coming week as soon as circumstances will allow you. There were not enough Pianos in the lot to last through Saturday, May 25, and we do not take any from the accounts for sale until Mondays—People who get in and buy Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays get tremendous bargains—Every Piano is tuned by our expert and is at concert pitch before coming into our salesroom—We let no Piano go out before being assured of its excellent condition.

PROPOSALS.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

State Printing and Binding

State House, Boston, May 29, 1907.

Sealed proposals for the execution of all the printing and binding for the several departments of the government of the Commonwealth, except office stationery and blank books without printed headings, for a term of three or five years from the first day of July in the year 1907, will be received at the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth until ten o'clock A. M. on Tuesday, June 18th, 1907, by the officers designated in Chapter 87 of the Resolves of 1907. Such proposals may be made either for printing or binding, or both. The form of contract required, which is to be based upon a working day of eight hours and equal pay for equal work performed by men and women, at such rates as the officers above referred to shall decide to be equitable between employer and employed, may be obtained on application to the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. A bond satisfactory to said officers, in an amount not less than ten thousand dollars, will be required from the party to whom such contract is awarded, for the faithful performance of the contract. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. DANA MALONE, Chairman. JAMES W. KIMBALL, Clerk.

CITY OF BOSTON.

THE WATER DEPARTMENT of the City of Boston invites proposals for furnishing ice in blocks for the ice fountains in one or more of the sections of the city during the current summer, and giving bond of three hundred and fifty ($350) dollars for each section awarded. A copy of the proposal to be used and full information can be obtained at the office of the Water Commissioner, room 58, City Hall, Boston, and only proposals so obtained and used, accompanied with a certified check for $500, payable to and to be the property of the City if the proposal is not carried out, will be considered, and will be publicly opened and read at 12 o'clock M. of Tuesday, June 11, 1907, at said office. The Commissioner reserves the right to award contracts for one or more sections and the right to reject any or all proposals and to give preference to bidders paying the trades union rate of wages. WILLIAM J. WELCH, Water Commissioner.

A Chance for Governor Guild

Business Interests Want a Leader to Save Them from the Railway Trust

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is no longer a New England railroad. It never was a Massachusetts railroad. It owns but a few miles of track in this State which is worth scarcely more than half a million dollars. All the rest of Massachusetts it traverses over LEASED LINES.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford is not only no longer a NEW ENGLAND railroad, but it is no longer even a RAILROAD. This new charter recently granted to it by the easy virtue of a Connecticut Legislature has transformed it into a hybrid thing which railroad parlance is not yet able to describe.

The control of this road is located in hands far removed from the interests of New England and far removed from the interests of legitimate railroad management.

This recent transformation of a railroad into about every sort of a thing that needs a charter is nothing but a stock-jobbing, underwriting scheme of pillage and extortion and destruction.

More than one hundred millions of debt have been added recently to the burden of the New Haven road for the purchase of properties which have no legitimate connection with the operation of a railroad.

IN THESE TRANSACTIONS THE REAL INTERESTS OF THE NEW HAVEN ROAD AND OF THE STOCKHOLDERS WHO BOUGHT THEIR STOCK AS AN INVESTMENT OUT OF HONEST EARNINGS HAVE BEEN NO MORE CONSULTED THAN THE INTERESTS OF THE NEW ENGLAND PUBLIC.

The control of the road has passed into the hands of the giant predatory interests which are to-day the standing menace of the country; into the hands of the Harrimans, Rockefellers and Morgans, men who know little or nothing about managing a railroad except to loot it, and who govern it not according to the interests of the community it was created to serve but by the stock tickers in Wall street.

Power and stock gambling and underwriting profits are the objects of these reckless consolidations.

But worse than all this, and more threatening to New England, is the raid upon the only railroad now left to New England. This proposed merger of the Boston & Maine with the New Haven is more than a Massachusetts concern. It concerns all New England.

No sane business man can for an instant doubt that the monopolizing of the transportation interests of New England will be injurious to its business interests. The evils which are known to flow from the mere monopoly of transportation would be worth the greatest efforts to prevent. But above all, the business men of New England should rise up against the destruction of the Boston & Maine by the New Haven.

The New Haven road has incurred unparalleled obligations in the purchase of all the odds and ends which happened to lie within its territory.

It has guaranteed the payment of interest on the bonds of the hazardous street railway enterprises which it has purchased at high prices. These guarantees must be made good before any dividends can be paid.

What is the condition of the road which has assumed all these obligations quite novel in railroad history?

Last year it paid nothing from current earnings for additional equipment, and this failure to increase its equipment occurred in the face of tremendous increase of the railroad business all over the country. Not a single engine was added to the road last year and at the close of the year it had fifty-one engines LESS than the year before.

This decrease in its power to do business occurred at the very time the New York Central was telling the Massachusetts Legislature that the reason it could not move freight was that all the railroads of the country were purchasing so many engines to meet the demands of expanding business that the engine manufacturing companies were unable to keep up with its orders.

During this same period the Boston & Maine spent nearly a million dollars in new locomotives and charged in expenses of operation $1,076,427.21.

Had the Boston & Maine kept its books as the New Haven kept ITS books last year and had charged off nothing in operating expenses to additional equipment it could have paid a dividend of TEN or ELEVEN per cent.

The directors of the Boston & Maine know this perfectly well and yet they are permitting their stockholders to make agreements to exchange their stock for New Haven stock under the false impression that they are exchanging a seven per cent. stock for an eight per cent. stock.

The time was once in this country, and will return again, when the conduct of Mr. Olney, Mr. Tuttle and Mr. Whitney, the New England men on the executive committee of the board of directors of the Boston & Maine, would have been considered a breach of trust towards their stockholders. But these gentlemen, though New England men, do not represent New England interests on the board of directors.

There is one thing more important perhaps than all which indicates the disaster that New England will suffer if this merger is consummated. The New Haven road, in order to meet its enormous burdens, is obliged to charge 43 per cent. more per ton mile for freight than is charged by the Boston & Maine.

IF THE BOSTON & MAINE CHARGED THE SAME FREIGHT RATES AS THE NEW HAVEN ITS INCOME WOULD HAVE BEEN NEARLY SIX MILLIONS GREATER LAST YEAR.

The Boston & Maine carried more freight last year than the New Haven but it is not obliged to earn dividends upon such an enormous capitalization nor pay the interest upon such a burdensome bonded indebtedness.

In the light of these few facts is there any doubt that the purpose of this merger is to loot New England?

Does any sane business man contemplate the increase of freight rates by 43 per cent. in four of the six New England States with indifference?

The deal is not yet consummated and the people of Massachusetts can stop it by appropriate legislative action.

The men who are behind these deals are not unconquerable men. They have more effrontery than ability and they carry through their schemes of plunder more by their own audacity and the lack of information and the disorganization of the community than by the commanding talents of those who plan these operations.

Corrupt use of money is the only power which such interests have to advance their devices and this power cannot stand for a moment against an awakened and organized public sentiment.

Who is the leader who will lead the forces of public opinion in this great New England cause?

Little Editorials from the People

A JOB FOR THE GAS COMMISSIONERS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Please use your valuable column at this time in the interest of a number of poorly paid employes of the so-called "beneficial factor to Beverly," the United Shoe Machinery Company, and the small balance of Beverly's citizens who are not under the shadow of S. W. Winslow or some of his lieutenants in one way or another.

We are compelled to pay the exorbitant rate of $1.50 per thousand feet for a poor quality of gas and a correspondingly high rate for electricity, both utilities being controlled by the Beverly Gas & Electric Company, S. W. Winslow president. This rate has been running for about three years, when it had been $1.60.

Nobody seems willing to take hold of a matter like this here in Beverly. Perhaps, like the writer, they are afraid to let their names be used for fear their positions will be lost to them.

I hope you will take a little time to look up this little side issue. While people are still familiar with Mr. Winslow's shoe machinery methods, it should be brought to the attention of the State Commissioners, as has been done in the case of Haverhill.

Please excuse me from signing my name, as I work for the United Shoe Machinery Company and don't want to be told "work in this department is getting slack and you won't be needed."

"Aw, it's that Skinclothes divorce case! The whole town is talking about it!"

E. Z. MARK REWARDS HONESTY

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

1. STRANGER—Mr. Mark, I called at your house this morning in search of work. Mrs. Mark, seeing that I was in need, gave me food and also this old straw hat of yours. A few moments ago I found this hundred dollar bill inside the sweatband of the hat. At first I was tempted to keep it, but I could not bring myself to do anything so dishonest.

2. E. Z. MARK—You are an honest man, and I am proud to have met you. This money that you found in my hat must no doubt belong to me, although I do not remember putting it there. Allow me to give you twenty dollars for restoring my property to me. You are certainly entitled to that much commission for finding the money.

3. E. Z. MARK—Hello, Subbubs! If you had been here five minutes earlier you'd have seen an honest man, and he was only a common tramp at that. He found this hundred dollar bill in the sweatband of an old hat of mine that my wife gave him, and, instead of pocketing the money, he brought it straight to me. I gave him twenty dollars for his honesty.

4. SUBURBS—What! You gave twenty dollars in real money in return for this worthless counterfeit! Why, this bill wouldn't deceive a ten-year-old child. Really, E. Z., I hardly think it's a crime to swindle you. As a matter of justice, you ought to be indicted for throwing temptation in the way of your fellow-men.

Child Labor a National Menace

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

OVER the recent decision of the House Committee on Judiciary statesmen may argue and politicians may wrangle, but in the conclusion reached by the committee, that Congress can do nothing for the correction of child-labor abuses, all lovers of humanity can find nothing but sincere regret.

It may or it may not be true that the National Legislature has no jurisdiction over the States, but the deep-dyed infamy of the child-labor situation calls to heaven for the intervention of some authority which shall have the power to correct the conditions which are not only a disgrace to the nation's name but a positive menace to its very existence.

The children are the seed-corn of the country, and if they are used up in the ceaseless grind and toil of the mills and factories it follows that the country can have no future.

In sacrificing our children upon the altar of commercialism we are committing national suicide. The boys and girls of to-day cannot be weakened, deteriorated and degraded without insuring a decline in the physical, mental and moral life of to-morrow.

Just as one cannot gather grapes from thorns, nor figs from thistles, just so is it that you cannot make good and capable citizens out of the young people who are stunted in mind and body and soul by the treadmill life of the mills, shops and factories.

The men of old Carthage and Tyre had their horrid Moloch, on to whose red-hot remorseless arms they laid their little ones to be devoured by the fire-fiend, and we Christians of the year of grace nineteen hundred and seven wonder how it was that the old "pagans" could have been so heartless, and yet the question forces itself upon us: "In what sense is our modern child-labor system less cruel than was the old Moloch worship?"

It is high time that something was done, not merely to mitigate but to effectually and forever wipe out this standing shame upon our fair country's honor!

If it shall be decided by the lawyers and statesmen that Congress can do nothing to help the matter, then, in the name of all that is pure and holy, let the Legislatures of the various States, North, South, East and West, pass the laws which shall save the little ones from being destroyed.

No time should be lost in the promises. Already great harm has been done. The harm is plainly visible in all the manufacturing centres, in the throngs of young boys and girls that every morning move into the mills and every evening move out again, in their stunted growth, bowed forms, tired faces and premature age marks.

No finer earthly immortality awaits any man than that which will be forthcoming to the legislator who, by his heroic persistence, shall succeed in starting the enthusiasm for humanity which shall wipe out our country's deepest disgrace and most alarming evil—Child-Labor, the Moloch of modern times.

The Most Expensive City in the World

By Cleveland Moffett

"NEWPORT is the most expensive city in the world; it's twice as expensive as New York," declares a friend of mine, who pays $8,000 a season for the rent of his cottage. To be sure, this "cottage" is a handsome stone house in attractive grounds, perhaps the costliest of those that are rented regularly, but it certainly may be said that a rental varying from $3,000 to $7,000 for the three or four months is an ordinary affair in Newport, and occasionally, when one of the millionaire villas is to let—one of those splendid places by the sea, with stables and greenhouses and the glamour of imposing names, "We've taken Granite Point, my dear, from the Edgar J.'s"—then the price is $12,000 or $15,000 from June to September. And people glad to pay it!

A Dollar a Foot for Land

AS a matter of fact, $15,000 is a small enough sum to pay when one considers what the owner has already paid for the land, the house and the grounds. I suppose no Summer city in the world can show such lavish expenditure in so small an area, for fashionable Newport, or the heart of it, is comprised within two or three square miles at one corner of a little island.

Over all the rest of this island you may pick up land for a song, but here on this southwestern point you will pay, roughly speaking, $1 a square foot, which means $43,000 an acre; and none of these show places occupies less than one acre, while most of them have four or five and a few have ten or twelve. So the unimproved land alone represents a small fortune (it was farm land thirty years ago in the Ochre Point region, now worth millions) and the cottages themselves have cost half a million or a quarter of a million each, and some a full million—real palaces—with another million inside in furniture and objects of art. The simple stone wall around one of these million-dollar places (it belongs to E. J. Berwind) cost $100,000. Its gates and carvings kept the stonecutters busy for a year. Significant, is it not?—$100,000 for a stone wall!

Trees at Nine Hundred Per

AND here I may point out the extraordinary way in which Newport's bare lawns have been transformed into shaded parks, with rows of ancestral beeches and cedars, one would say, all grown to order overnight by the fiat of "Money wills it." Here, for instance, is a fine horse chestnut, its branches spread sixty feet and your extended arms scarcely compass its girth. Surely, you say, this tree has stood here for generations. Not at all; it has stood here for two or three months. And the same is true of those maples down the driveway and of that rare old tulip tree by the hedge, and of yonder group of sturdy red cedars. One year ago the maples were growing twenty miles away, the horse chestnut thirty miles away, and the tulip tree fifty miles away. Then the order came that these trees must shade and beautify this lawn and frame a picture of the sea for the piazza people. So two gangs of Italians were sent forth with picks and shovels, and under each chosen tree they dug two tunnels, leaving the roots in a great ball of solid earth. Then they skidded it up on heavy timbers and moved it on rollers, and made it fast on a special truck, and hitched on thirty horses—for the weight was thirty tons—and thus mile after mile they dragged it here and planted it, and the time consumed was six weeks, and the cost was nine hundred dollars for that one tree!

Of course, it costs less to move smaller trees. Three or four hundred dollars apiece will give you a modest grove, but even so, with acres to cover, it is clear that your bill for shade may run far into the thousands. And there are forty places in Newport (I have it from the leading florist) where the running expenses of gardens, greenhouses, trees, lawns, hedges, etc., amount to $10,000 or $15,000 a year, and several places where these expenses are much more than that—one place in particular where half a million has been spent on the grounds and where twenty men are required for the mere details of landscape gardening.

Florists Must Live

IT might be supposed that, with extensive greenhouses to draw upon, the mistress of one of these handsome places would have flowers in abundance for all occasions, but such is not the case. The greenhouses merely supply the family's daily needs, and a florist is called upon for elaborate dinners, balls and fetes. So that a fashionable family will easily spend a thousand dollars a month in the season simply on flowers for small dinners, such as are given say once a week. A thousand dollars does not go far when your guests sit under canopies of American Beauty roses, spreading over the table like apple trees in full bloom, and when the tables themselves are beds of lilies and gardenias. Nor does this amount include the flowers for balls.

"The flowers for a single ball sometimes cost $2,000," said my friend, the florist.

"How is that possible?" I asked.

He smiled.

"How is it possible? Suppose you are giving floral favors in the cotillon at $10 each. You think $10 is too much? I can show you on my books where Mrs. Havemeyer at a recent ball paid me $15 each for one hundred and twenty floral favors. That made $1,800, without even starting the decorations."

Then he described another famous ball where the walls were festooned with laurel wreaths, and at each loop of the wreaths hung an enormous gilt basket filled with exquisite pink roses, among which sparkled dozens of tiny electric lights. That item alone cost a thousand dollars.

Little Editorials from the People

A PLAN TO AVERT STRIKES.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

For the permanent prevention of strikes I would suggest that labor organizations open their doors to employers at least once a month. After the usual business is over some employer should be invited to speak before the union, taking for his subject the discussion of a topic connected with the industry represented, to be followed by light refreshments and social greetings.

Then some member of the union should prepare a paper, at the delivery of which representative employers should be invited, with the privilege of speaking if so inclined, to conclude with the usual course of refreshments and social chat.

Let there be more sociability between employer and employe, and we will live to see a bright and happy day for America and the world in general.
